VETERAN PITCHER OF SENATORS FAILS TO HOLD BATTERS SAFELY IN FIFTH GAME OF WORLD SERIES

Bentley, Giant Pitcher, and "Goose" Goslin, Both Make Home Runs During Game Today—Series Now Stands Three to Two in Favor of the Giants, With the New Yorkers Leading one More Victory to Clinch the World Championship at Baseball

Score by innings: R H E
New York 0 0 1 0 2 0 0 3 x-6 13 0
Washington 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0-2 9 1
Batteries—New York—Bentley, McQuillan and Gowdy.
Washington—Johnson and Ruel.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 8.—The New York Giants, batting Walter Johnson, Washington pitching veteran, for 13 hits, won today's world series, 6 to 2. The victory gave the Giants' three games to two for the Senators.

New York scored the first run of today's game in the third inning, and Washington came back and evened the count in the fourth frame. In the fifth, Hank Gowdy, Giant catcher, singled and Jack Bentley, Giant pitcher, hit a home run into the right field stands, scoring Gowdy ahead of him.

Washington rallied in the eighth inning. "Goose" Goslin hit a home run into the right field stands, trying the home run record of Ruth, made in last year's series. Judge singled after this and Bentley was taken out of the box and Hugh McQuillan sent in by McGraw.

Play in Detail

First Inning
Senators—Lindstrom robbed McNeely of a hit with a leaping catch. Wilson took Harris' long fly. Terry captured Rice's hoist. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Johnson got an ovation as he walked to the pitcher's box. Lindstrom hit the first ball for a clean single to center. Miller took Frisch's high foul. McNeely gathered in Young's fly. Lindstrom went out stealing. Ruel to Harris. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Inning
Senators—Goslin beat out an infield hit. It was Goslin's fifth straight hit, counting yesterday's game. Wilson took Judge's fly. Terry dropped Bluege's fly but Goslin was caught at second. Frisch to Jackson. Ruel got a base on balls. Frisch threw out Miller. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Kelly sent up a high foul to Miller. Terry went out at first to Judge, unassisted. Judge raced over to the stands and took Wilson's foul. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning
Senators—The stands rose and cheered Johnson as he walked to the plate. He responded by getting a single into left, but in trying to make it a two-bagger was thrown out at second, Wilson to Frisch to Terry. McNeely beat out a bunt to Lindstrom. Harris scratched a hit to second. Rice popped to Gowdy. Frisch threw out Goslin. No runs, three hits, no errors.

Giants—Jackson scratched an infield hit. Gowdy struck out. Bentley singled into right, Jackson going to third. Jackson scored when Lindstrom scratched a hit to third. Bentley going to second. Bluege took Frisch's grounder and tossed to Miller and the umpire ruled that Bentley was safe. It was a fielder's choice. The bases were full. Young lined out to right and Bentley was doubled at the plate, Rice to Johnson to Ruel. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning
Senators—Judge singled off the right field wall. Bluege sacrificed, Bentley to Terry. Jackson threw out Ruel at first. Judge scored on Miller's single to right, Miller tried to stretch it, but went out Young to Frisch. One run, two hits, no errors.

Giants—Kelly went out on strikes. Terry got a long hit into right for three bases. Johnson took Wilson's slash and Terry was run down. Johnson to Miller. Wilson went to second. Jackson sent up a high fly to Harris. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning
Senators—Johnson went out to Jackson to Terry. McNeely popped to Terry. Harris went out on strikes. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Gowdy got a sharp single. Bentley got a home run into the right field stands, scoring Gowdy ahead of him. Lindstrom fouled out to Ruel. Frisch got a two-base hit when the wind blew the ball away from McNeely. Young was hit by a pitched ball. The ball struck him in the knee and he limped to first. Kelly hit into a double play, Bluege to Harris to Judge. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning
Senators—Rice struck out. Goslin drove a long foul into the right field stands and then struck out. Judge singled sharply past Frisch. Bluege struck out, Bentley retiring the side on strikes. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Terry got a base on balls. Wilson struck out. Jackson dropped an apparent hit into right field but Rice raced in and threw quickly to Harris, getting Terry. Gowdy popped to Harris. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning
Senators—Ruel got a base on balls. Miller went out to Terry, unassisted. Ruel going to second. Kelly took

Ninth Inning
Senators—Leibold batted for Miller but flied out to Kelly. Tate batted for Johnson and got a base on balls. Taylor ran for Tate, and went to second. It was no steal. McNeely struck out. Harris flied to Wilson. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 8.—McGraw and Harris were prepared to train the "Big Berthas" of their pitching staffs at each other today in the fifth game of the world series to gain an advantage before the scene shifts to the national capital for the sixth game.

The teams met in Washington tomorrow for the sixth game. Before the game starts, the club owners of the contending teams will meet and toss a coin to decide the place of the seventh game, if such is necessary.

To date McGraw has exhibited nine members of his hurling staff, all except two youngsters. Manager Harris has tried all of his staff except Zahner.

Nahf reported that his injured thumb was much improved today but he would not venture an opinion as to whether he would start against Walter Johnson. The injured member is painted with iodine. It was decided not to start him.

Despite a drizzling rain which lasted all night and early this morning, the field was in good condition. A snappy breeze blew across the field and most of the early customers came garbed in overcoats and sweaters.

Manager Harris announced that Walter Johnson would work for the Senators but he said he was uncertain about Beckinpugh. Later he decided to keep him out.

INDEPENDENTS HERE PLAN FOR FALL ELECTION

Name Executive Committee and Indorse Coalition Ticket, at Gathering

HERE FROM CANDIDATES

Candidates For Legislature Say They Are Ready For Fight

Hurlough County Independents today took the field with an organization for intensive work in the fall campaign, following a meeting last night of 75 workers.

It was decided to support the fusion ticket, including the legislative ticket, which is composed of Christ Berthel, Democrat, for state senator; J. M. Thompson, Republican, and Mrs. Robina Moses and H. P. Aselstine on the Democratic ticket, for representative. No action is taken by the committee on state superintendent of public instruction of supreme court judge.

Declarations were made by speakers to the effect that the June primary was lost by Independents because of failure of over-confidence of anti-leaguers who failed to vote, and it was urged that there has been a revival of fighting spirit among Independents which makes possible the winning of the November election, with good organization.

Among those who addressed the gathering were George Shafer, candidate for Attorney-General; D. E. Shipley, candidate for Secretary of State; R. B. Murphy, Democratic national committeeman, and the legislative candidates.

J. M. Thompson, the first legislative candidate called on, declared the League program was the same as it was five or six years ago, and that extension of state industrialism as advocated by the League means high taxes. Others expressed enthusiasm and declared the chances of victory on November 4 are excellent. Chairman Sperry asserted the meeting last night was the largest organization meeting in three years.

Lynn Sperry was named chairman and H. S. Dobler secretary of the meeting. A campaign committee of seven men and seven women was named as follows: H. J. Duemeland, A. L. Garneis, H. P. Goddard, L. W. Sperry, E. A. Thorberg, Fred Peterson, Valentine Benz, Mrs. E. P. Quain, Mrs. R. A. Tracy, Mrs. H. C. Edgerton, Mrs. F. E. McCurdy, Mrs. Matt Boesflug, Mrs. H. F. Keller, Mrs. Berthoff. The committee will meet and elect its own officers.

NEW ISSUE OF MAPS GIVEN

Highway Commission to Distribute Tour Maps

North Dakota's official road maps are proving popular with travelers. Or at least it would seem so because of the rapidity with which the supply provided by the State Highway Commission was exhausted. The first edition of the map lasted two months. Then the Commission was forced to have another edition made up because of the insistent demands of the traveling fraternity.

The new editions, just received by the Commission were sent from the printers in a box the capacity of which was just one cord, five thousand maps filled the box.

Hotels, garages and individuals who have been unable to get their supply of maps during the past week may now secure them by writing the Highway Commission, at Bismarck. Only one minor change was made on the new maps. The border-line of the Fort Totten Indian Reservation was changed slightly to conform with a recent change made by the Federal government.

The new maps bear the same route markings as the first edition, and are printed in the same easily distinguishable red and white. All routes are marked in full on the maps, in the same manner in which the actual markings are placed on the road side.

A new map will be prepared for early delivery showing approximately two thousand miles added to the system, says Chief Engineer Black, since the present map was prepared, maybe a few minor changes in numbering.

INJUNCTION IN GROWERS CASE IS CONTINUED

Judge Janssonius Holds Law Requires Prohibition From Selling Outside Pool

ON ITS MERITS LATER

Continuation of Temporary Injunction Is Held Merely Matter of Formality

A temporary injunction prohibiting Peter Weisenberger, farmer of the vicinity of Tuttle, Kidder county, from selling his wheat outside the pool of the North Dakota Wheat Growers' Association, was continued by Judge Fred Janssonius, sitting in the Kidder county court, pending a determination of the issues on their merits, today.

Time of hearing of the case on its merits probably will depend upon the action of attorneys in the case. The next regular term in Kidder county is in January.

The court, in a memorandum following arguments before him last week, said that "In my opinion there is nothing before the Court until this case comes up on its merits," holding that under the legislative act of 1921 for the creation of cooperative associations an injunction must issue if the Wheat Growers file a bond, and that the issues shall be determined in a hearing on the merits.

Attorneys for Weisenberger, who is said to be joined by other farmers, made sensational charges against the Wheat Growers, including allegations of fraud, and asserted a receiver should be named, in the answer and cross-billed filed. These issues, it is expected, under the court memorandum, will come before Judge Janssonius on the hearing on its merits.

Court Memorandum
"The legislative assembly of 1921 passed an act for the creation of cooperative marketing associations, and the North Dakota Wheat Growers' Association was organized pursuant to said Act," the court memorandum said.

"Section 17 of the Act provides that market contracts may be executed by the members of the association, requiring the members to sell for a period of time, not exceeding five years, all or a part of the agricultural products. Such a contract was entered into in this case."

"The last paragraph of Section 17 reads as follows:
"In the event of any breach or threatened breach of such marketing contract by a member, the association shall be entitled to an injunction to prevent the further breach of contract and to a decree of specific performance."

"Pending the adjudication of such an action and upon filing a verified complaint showing the breach or threatened breach, and upon filing a sufficient bond, the association shall be entitled to a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction against the member."

"The plaintiff has filed a verified complaint, and a bond as provided by the Act, and the temporary restraining order, in my opinion, follows as a matter of course.
"The defendant has filed an answer in this case charging that the plaintiff has failed to perform its part of the contract, and for that reason he should be relieved from the performance of his part."

"An issue of fact is therefore presented that must be determined, and should specially be determined by a trial upon the merits."

"An erroneous impression seems to have gone out that this case has been tried, when, as a matter of fact, the pleadings have just been filed."

"The plaintiff having complied with the statute by filing a verified complaint and a bond to protect the defendant in the event that the defendant is successful at the final hearing, the temporary restraining order must, under the plain reading of the statute, continue until the case is finally decided."

"In my opinion there is nothing before the Court yet to require the exercise of discretion.
"The plaintiff having filed his verified complaint, and a proper bond to protect the defendant, the temporary restraining order, under the plain reading of the law, continue until the case is heard upon its merits."

"Dated at Bismarck, North Dakota, this 8th day of October, 1924."

CLAIM VICTORY

Peking, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—After 24 hours of heavy artillery firing on the Shan-haikwan front, China Tso-tsin's Manchurian forces attacked this morning, but were beaten off by the Chihli troops, supporting the Peking government. At 10 a. m. the positions of the opposing army were virtually unchanged, but the guns continued active.

ENTRY REPORTED

Shanghai, China, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—The forces of Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, entered Shan-haikwan yesterday evening, according to a Japanese report from Mukden. Many casualties were suffered by both sides in the heavy fighting, which preceded the entry, according to the report.

GENERAL WEATHER CONDITIONS

The high pressure area has moved to the eastern Great Lakes region, and a well defined low pressure area, covering the Rocky Mountain region, covers the Rocky Mountain region. This decreasing pressure over the West has been accompanied by rising temperature from the Mississippi Valley westward to the Pacific Coast. Minimum temperatures were near freezing, however, in Minnesota and North Dakota. Precipitation occurred from the Great Lakes region southwestward to Oklahoma and Texas. Precipitation also occurred at scattered places in the extreme West.

PRISONERS ON STRIKE, REFUSE TO PEEL SPUDS

Minot, N. D., Oct. 8.—Prisoners in the county jail who on Saturday staged a "strike," refusing to peel potatoes which were to be furnished them at dinner, changed their mind within a few hours after orders had been given that those men participating in the strike should not be furnished with any of these vegetables.

Deputy Sheriff W. E. Skubbaugh lined the prisoners up when the dinner was announced, and those participating in the strike were not furnished with potatoes, while the members of the jail crew who are working at hard labor were given a generous quantity.

The same afternoon the "strikers" announced their willingness to again peel potatoes, providing they would be given a regular ration.

DAWES STARTS IOWA TOUR ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Chief Campaigner of Republican Party Carries on Anti-LaFollette Fight

LAUNCH BIG ASSAULT

Dawes Special, on route through Iowa, Mason City, Ia., Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—The Republican fight against the LaFollette independent candidacy in Iowa was led today by the Republican party's chief campaign speaker and vice-presidential nominee, Charles G. Dawes.

The direction of the fight was taken over by Mr. Dawes yesterday when he entered the state, made a rear platform speech at North wood and spoke to an audience that jammed the Mason City armory last night to capacity.

Leaving Mason City today, the itinerary took him through the section of the state in which LaFollette strength is most feared by Republican leaders. The day's itinerary provided for five Iowa speakers. The stops were listed from Fort Dodge, Storm Lake, Le Mars, Cherokee and Sioux City, and leaving the state late in the day Mr. Dawes will speak at Norfolk, Nebraska, before swinging up into Wyoming for speeches at Douglas and Casper.

CLAIMS FUND IS RAISED TO BUY ELECTION

Senator Announces Intention To Pursue Demand For Congressional Probe

DENIALS ARE GIVEN

C. Bascom Slemph, President's Secretary, Declares Story 'Pure Fabrication'

SLEMP BRANDS IT FALSE

Washington, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—C. Bascom Slemph, Secretary to President Coolidge, branded as "pure fabrication" today the statement by Senator LaFollette, independent Presidential candidate, that he would have charge of a campaign "slush fund" for the Republican party.

"I know nothing about the Republican national committee finances," said Mr. Slemph, and I have no connection, direct or indirect, with the handling of them. Neither will I have in the future."

"It has been suggested to me that I leave Washington in the interest of President Coolidge's candidacy and I have no intention of leaving."

Hoboken, N. J., Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Determined to press his demand for a Senate investigation to establish whether a "slush fund" is being collected to "buy the election" for President Coolidge in doubtful states," as he charged in address last night at Senator Pennsylvania, Senator LaFollette invaded New Jersey today for a speech in Newark before swimming westward on a tour to the Pacific Coast.

On reaching Hoboken he issued a statement reiterating the "slush fund" charges.

"I intend," he said, "to follow up vigorously my demand for an investigation of the special slush fund which is being collected under the direction of W. T. Mellon of Pittsburgh, brother of the treasury secretary, and Edward P. Statesbury, the Philadelphia partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, for the alleged purpose of buying the election for Coolidge in doubtful states."

"It is evident that this is a repetition of the tactics used by Mark Hanna in the campaign of 1896, when the famous message was sent to Colonel Dudley of Indiana with its instructions to vote them in blocks of five."

Awaiting Reply

Mr. LaFollette was awaiting a reply today to his telegram to Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Senate committee on campaign expenditures of which he demanded immediate investigation of the alleged slush fund and urged him to subpoena Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee, W. T. Mellon, Mr. Statesbury, Joseph Grundy, President of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association and others who, he declared in his Scranton address, he had reason to believe had a hand in the effort to raise a "slush fund" of three or four million dollars.

THRESHING IS AGAIN HALTED

Rain Causes Suspension of Work in County

Rain which fell last night and this morning in Bismarck will further delay threshing in this section. Persons who have traveled over the county report that more threshing has been completed around Bismarck and south of here, than any other part of the county.

One local man estimated that threshing is about 50 percent complete in the northern part of the county. Because threshing rigs have been tied up a good deal, the labor situation has been ironed out and there does not appear to be great difficulty in obtaining sufficient workers.

Threshing in many parts of the state has been greatly impeded within the last week.

The downpour in Bismarck today reached .66 of an inch at 1:30 p. m.

RECORD CROWD SEES GAME IN POLO GROUNDS

Baseball Scandal Does Not Keep New Yorkers From Pulling For Win

New York, Oct. 7.—Baseball's scandal talk failed to dampen the ardor of the crowd that thronged the Polo Grounds yesterday for the third game of the world series, and the first in the Polo Grounds. The attendance was 50,500, it was announced after a final check-up. Officially the paid attendance was 47,600, but many more did not contribute to the gate receipts of $186,572, which also established a new record for the Polo Grounds. The previous attendance record was last year when 46,302 paid for a game.

The crowd was hardly less enthusiastic than the crowds which saw the first two games in Washington, and the New York fans were glad to see the Giants win, 6 to 4.

The heroes of the Giants' triumph were Frank Frisch, sparking second baseman, and John Watson, pitcher. Two of three starting defensive plays Frisch pulled, at the expense of "Gus" Goslin, Washington outfielder, and he turned the Senators back when they were most dangerous. The most brilliant was in the fourth inning when Frisch raced to center field and grabbed Goslin's looping fly over his shoulder while going at top speed. Frisch retired Goslin again on a catch scarcely less brilliant.

Watson stopped the Senators in the ninth inning when a hit would have won the score, and possibly have won it for the Senators. The pitching yesterday was the poorest in a world series game in many years, in the opinion of some experts. Washington used Maiberry, Russell, Martina and Speece, and New York used McQuillan, Ryan, Jonnard and Watson.

ORIOLES COME TO ST. PAUL

Now Have Three Games to One For Saints

Baltimore, Oct. 7.—The Baltimore Orioles, international league champions, and the St. Paul Saints, pennant winners of the American Association, are en route to St. Paul today where on Thursday they will resume play in the little world series after five games here.

Yesterday's game, a play-off of last Saturday's tie, resulted in a decidedly one-sided victory for the Birds, by a score of 10 to one, and increased the lead of the International Leaguers to two games. The series count is now three games to one in Baltimore's favor, with five triumphs necessary to carry off the series.

FINE WEATHER IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 7.—Clear skies and an autumn tang in the air gave assurances of excellent weather conditions for the world series game.

White Sox Are Chicago Champs

Chicago, Oct. 7.—The White Sox remain Chicago champions, even if they did finish last in the 1924 American league race.

Bowling over the Cubs yesterday, 5 to 1, the American league nine led by Johnny Evers retained their city title re won last year from the National leaguers after a lapse of 12 months.

It was the sixth game of the series, the Cubs having captured the first and fifth combats solely on the pitching of Grover Alexander.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets Helps You Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight—Great

Nothing like the vitamins in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting stomach-upsetting oil of itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely does the work.

Ask—A—any regular druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. They are sugar-coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on five pounds or over in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on five pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, run-down children, too, and gives them a hearty appetite—60 tablets, 60 cents.

FANS COMING FOR BIG BOUT

Home Town Rooters to Boost Krause and Moug

A big crowd of fans from out of town is expected here for the Bar Krause Joe Moug 10 round boxing match Thursday night in the city Auditorium. Medina is sending a group of hometown citizens to boost Joe Moug while Haven fans will come here to root for Krause. Wilton and Mandan both have reserved blocks of tickets for the battle.

Krause and Moug are to settle an old score. They have met before and each claims to have had the better of the mix.

The completed card, announced today, includes in addition to the 10-round main bout: 8 round semi-wind up, Otto Baldwin of Fargo against Jimmy Donahue of Glendive, Montana, 6 round bout, Bill Doanier against Battling Selinsky; one other four round bout and the Eckroth battles of Mandan in an exhibition.

Ladies are to be admitted free to the fight, and promoters announce there will be no smoking during the battle.

SEND BALLOT TO AUDITORS

J. L. Page Withdraws in Second District

North Dakota's ballot for the November 4 election was completed late Saturday with the expiration of time for withdrawal of candidates. J. L. Page of Westhope, Democratic nominee for Congressman in the Second district, telegraphed his withdrawal, clearing the way for a nominee of the Nonpartisan League campaign between M. C. Freckles, Party; Thomas Hall, Republican; and Gerald Nye, LaFollette Wheeler Progressive. Voters in the Second district also will vote between Thomas Hall and Gerald Nye, candidates on a special ballot November 1 for the balance of the term of George M. Young, who resigned. The term expires next March 4. Additional candidates may be entered in this race until 15 days before the election.

One other change in the ballot was made by receipt of withdrawal of John Ehr, Democratic nominee for state senator in the 29th district, Ward county. Walter Bond of Minot is endorsed by Independents for the place.

Names of candidates in the election were certified out to county auditors late today by Secretary of State Thomas Hall.

ISSUES REQUISITION

Governor Nestos has made requisition for return of J. M. Weyrens from Minneapolis to Ellendale, Dickey county, to answer charge of issuing a check without funds in the bank.

BANGS HEADS STATE ELKS

Phil Bangs, Grand Forks lawyer, was elected president. William Broderick of Williston was reelected secretary-treasurer and Charles Doyon of Doyon, a member of the Devils Lake lodge, was reelected trustee for five years at the closing session of the North Dakota State Elks Association at Mandan today. Grand Forks was chosen for the next year's meeting.

Resolutions favoring continuation of the annual essay contest as a means of causing the school children to study patriotic subjects so as to be able to write on them was one of the more important matters adopted by the Elks Association.

Another resolution suggested to the national board and officers that the grand lodge establish means whereby it might work with subordinate lodges through state associations. It was contended that the state association is in closer touch with local lodges.

ARGENTINE OFFICIALS IN SABER DUEL

Buenos Aires, Oct. 7. (By the A. P.)—Dr. Thomas Lebreton and Deputies Molinari were both slightly wounded after a brief encounter in an affair of honor last night. The duel was fought with sabers. Deputy Molinari was challenged by Dr. Lebreton on account of the publication of a newspaper article which the latter in his position as minister of agriculture considered offensive.

SAYS COOLIDGE ONLY ISSUE IN FALL ELECTION

Secretary Hughes Declares Many Outside Matters Are Injected In It

AGAINST CORRUPTION

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 7.—The Republican presidential campaign in Ohio formally was opened here Saturday night with Secretary Hughes as chief speaker, his address covering almost every issue raised thus far by either Democratic or independent orators.

"Whatever may be the subject of campaign speakers," the secretary declared, "there is really only one issue in this campaign and that is—shall the administration of Calvin Coolidge be continued?"

"The average man, who is not interested in the tactics of the campaign says to himself and to his neighbor: Why should there be a change?"

Taking up first the arguments of "Our historic opponents of the Democratic party," Mr. Hughes dismissed briefly what he termed "eloquent discourses on the fundamental principles of American government."

"Does it occur to our friends, that if the question is one of Americanism, you could not find in the length and breadth of the land, a more typical American than Calvin Coolidge," he asked. "Calvin Coolidge incarnates Americanism. There could be no better motto in change."

It was "equally vain," he said, to seek an issue in common honesty, Mr. Hughes declared.

"Fortunately, honesty is common," he added. "It is common to both parties, because it is common to Americans. It is not the special quality of any party."

"We detest political corruption and we demand the punishment of the guilty. The Republican who soils his hands in corrupt dealings is as treacherous to his party as to his country."

Every demand of justice is being met and every interest of the government is being safeguarded. No guilty person is being protected; every guilty person will get his just deserts according to the law of the speaker."

The speaker denied, however, "our opponents" selfish shifting to general denunciation mingling the innocent with the guilty in a diatribe which are the last resort of desperate partisanship."

"There are no dividends for honest men in sweeping denunciations," he said. "This lesson should be taken to heart by our Democratic friends. Indiscriminate denunciation might serve as a partisan policy if you could monopolize it. But, while the Democrats are damning us, they are in turn damned. While denouncing the Republican party as the servant of privilege, they are themselves denounced as the tools of Wall street, the supple, experienced instruments of predatory wealth."

"It is the open season for reckless attacks upon character. The Democrats assail the Republicans and the third party pour out its vials of wrath and condemnation upon both. When it comes to indicting a whole nation, the third party has the best of it. But we not only have common honesty in this country; we have a sense of humor."

superintendent of the five civilized tribes, told of the finding of oil on Indian land in Oklahoma and the millions of dollars that tribesmen received as a result of the discovery.

"Since leasing the lands of members of the five civilized tribes—Choctaws, Chickasaws, Cherokee, Creek and Seminoles—for oil and gas mining purposes, first began in the Indian Territory, the Indian office at Muskogee has collected for individual restricted Indians more than $52,000,000 in oil royalties, Wallen declared.

Restricted lands comprise but 15 percent of the land originally allotted to the five tribes, he added. On this basis oil and gas to the value of $2,800,000,000 have been produced from the entire holdings of the tribesmen, the superintendent pointed out.

GRAIN HANDLED TOO FAST FOR BIG TERMINALS

Railroads Carry More Grain Into Duluth Than Can Be Received There

RESULT IS EMBARGO

Rain falling in North Dakota Saturday may halt threshing operations enough to relieve congestion at terminals, which has resulted in the placing of an embargo on shipments of grain to Duluth until the situation is relieved there.

The Soo line here is much affected by the ban on shipments to Duluth. Announcement received at division offices here of the embargo says that shipments are not accepted on grain to Duluth, Superior or Itasca. The embargo, it was said, was placed after investigation by the Joint Terminal Grain Committee of the North-west Advisory Board. The advisory board is composed of railroad men, shippers and state officials, the North Dakota railroad commission being represented on it.

A statement of P. J. Coleman, chairman of the Joint Terminal Grain Committee, tells of an unprecedented movement of grain in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. He says in part:

The unprecedented loading of grain in the States of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana for primary markets having surpassed all previous loadings for any similar period has resulted in the congestion of more carloads of grain to Duluth, Minn., and Superior-Itasca, Wisconsin, than those two great and adequate terminal markets can handle.

These terminal markets with a total active storage capacity of approximately 34,000,000 bushels, and with a daily capacity for unloading of approximately 1400 large grain cars per day, has come face to face with a situation which must be relieved.

For sometime past the average daily consignment of grain to these great markets has been approximately 1900 cars per day, or 500 cars more than their approximately unloading capacity, with a result that a substantial accumulation of cars loaded with grain is being delayed in unloading, and this accumulation is also causing congestion on the rail-

RED CROSS IS PRAISED HERE TO ROTARIANS

Purposes and Aims Explained to Club Members at Weekly Luncheon Today

BOTHERS ON PROGRAM

Northern Pacific Representative and Deputy State
Fire Marshal Speak

The guests at the Rotary luncheon included Richard A. Tracy, Mrs. F. L. Conklin, and Miss Mary Cashel, representatives of the Burleigh County Chapter of the Red Cross; J. D. Stenson, Deputy State Fire Marshal, Howard H. Ellsworth, of the Northern Pacific, and Neal Clark of Iowa, Roy Baird and Fulton Burnett, and L. C. Sorle of Bismarck.

H. J. Duemeland opened the program with a mouth organ obligato. Howard Ellsworth was called upon and spoke of Northern Pacific conditions generally and North Dakota especially. He stated that not an elevator had as yet "plugged" on their lines and that all stations for the first time in eight months were now showing a profit.

As a forerunner for the approaching Red Cross Roll Call, Mrs. F. L. Conklin in introducing Miss Cashel, said that the United States is one of 48 nations supporting the Red Cross under treaty. She outlined the plan now in force in Burleigh County whereby the county worker, chosen by the Red Cross, not only does the particular Red Cross work but with financial backing from the city and county acts as city and county poor commissioner. The fact that this worker is chosen by the Red Cross keeps the work out of politics and in Mrs. Conklin's opinion greatly enhances the efficiency of the work.

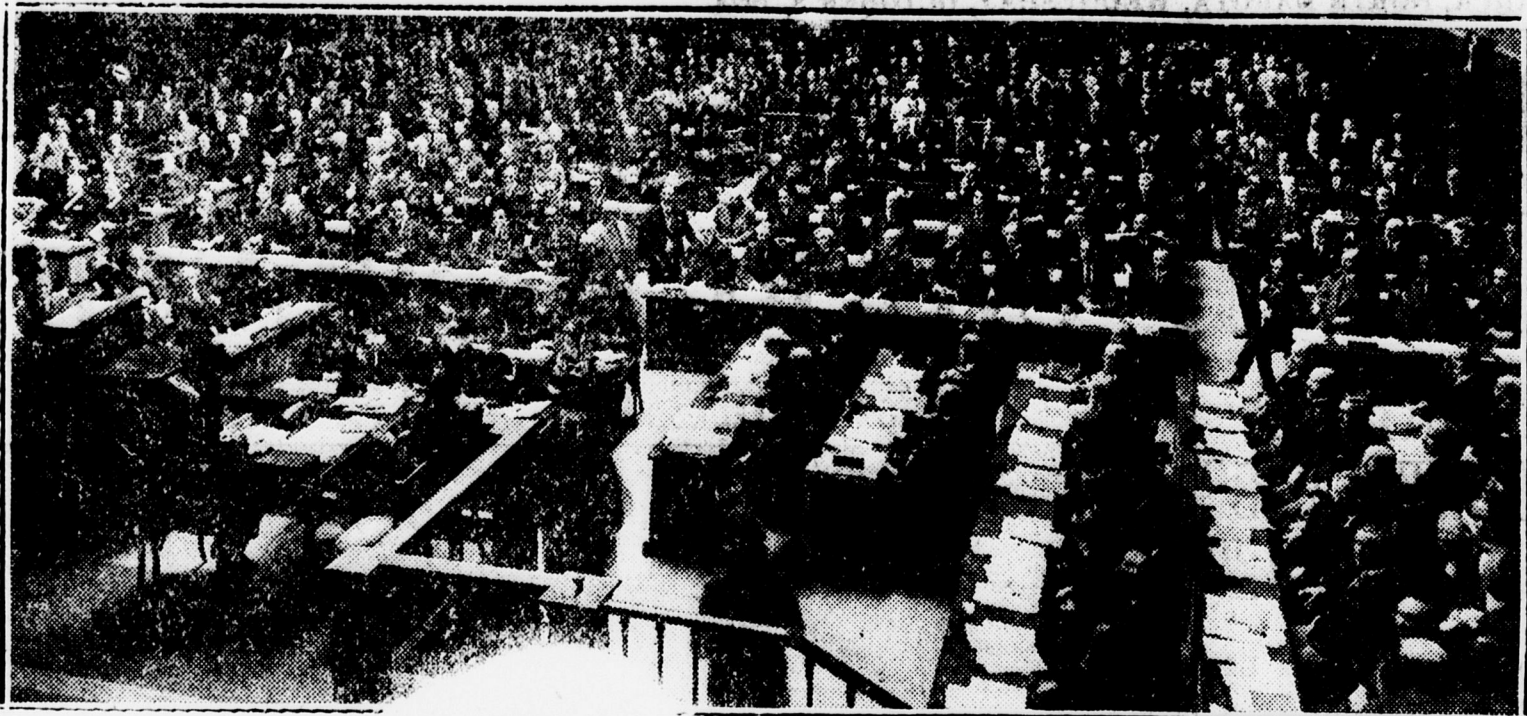

She emphasized the duty of the Red Cross in giving comfort to soldiers and their dependents, and the second as national and international aid in case of disaster. Miss Cashel, defined the three departments of her work, soldiers, city poor relief, and county relief, stating that the work of the last two classes was directly the work of city and county, the Red Cross itself giving financial aid in these only in case of emergency. She said that only eight families in Bismarck are being aided by the poor fund at the present time and of these seven are aged people, while 14 are receiving aid through the mothers' pension.

Another Activity
Another activity of the Burleigh County Chapter of the Red Cross, Social Registration, whereby all aid and charity is registered in order to coordinate charity and prevent duplication. Miss Cashel stated that the North Dakota Children's Bureau cleared through the Red Cross Office, this activity dealing with cases of desertion, truancy and delinquency. Her work with ex-soldiers has increased considerably with the passing of the Federal Bonus Law and the law extending the time for submission for claims to the government.

F At the beginning of the year 115 soldier cases were open in the files. Of these over 100 have been closed and in addition 27 new cases have been added.
J. L. Bell, treasurer of the Burleigh County Chapter, gave a short analysis of the National Red Cross Budget of $16,000,000 showing that only 2 1/2% of the money was required for administrative expense. He also gave a brief summary of the Burleigh County work which entailed the expenditure of $2,555 the past year. He said that $1,899 was raised through the Roll Call last fall. Dick Tracy, chairman of the Roll Call for Burleigh County in a short talk bore on his desire, not for amount of individual subscriptions, but for membership of each individual in the County to the Red Cross.

Fire Prevention
Mr. J. D. Stenson closed the program with an able talk on Fire Prevention. He called attention to the fact that October 8th is the 63rd anniversary of the Chicago Fire. He stated that the total losses for the past year in the United States amounted to $506,541,000 which is $17,000,000 less than the previous year. Mr. Stenson said that the per capita yearly loss throughout the United States was $4.55 annually, in North Dakota $5.70, and in Bismarck $2.33. He emphasized the havoc directly traceable to carelessness and impressed through many facts and figures the importance of Fire Prevention.

WILL DISCUSS HEALTH WORK IN N. DAKOTA

Fargo Occupies Conspicuous
Place in Child Health
Demonstration Work

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 8.—North Dakota has occupied a conspicuous place in the child health field since the establishment nearly two years ago of the child health demonstration at Fargo. Child health workers from all parts of the country have visited this demonstration established by the American Child Health Association and the Commonwealth Fund.

What the Fargo demonstration has accomplished in its cooperative community program for raising the health standards of mothers and children in Fargo will be discussed at the Second Annual Meeting of the American Child Health Association in Kansas City, Mo., October 14-16. Dr. William J. French, director of the Fargo Child Health Demonstration, will participate in the program. He will talk on "Training Leaders for Child Health Work in a City Program," basing his facts upon the experiment now being carried on in Fargo.

The association under the presidency of Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Department of Commerce, has done several outstanding pieces of work in the child health field during the year. One of the local projects in North Dakota was the clean and safe milk campaign carried on in cooperation with the state department of health. Of the fifty teachers' scholarships for health education awarded by the association in June to teachers throughout the country one went to North Dakota. Miss Katie Lobben, teacher in Fargo public schools, was the winner representing North Dakota teachers.

At the Second Annual Meeting in Kansas City, the subject of "Community Organization for Child Health Work" will be featured. Prominent pediatricians, educators, public health officials, nurses and community organizers will contribute to the program. Joint sessions will also be held with the Kansas City Clinical Society and the Medical Association of the Southwest also meeting that week.

RAIN GENERAL THROUGHSTATE

Thrashing Much Delayed.
Little Damage Seen

Fargo, Oct. 8.—Rain is general today over almost all sections of North Dakota, the thrashing of which there is 50 percent or more to be done, according to reports here, taking the state as a whole, is everywhere delayed.

There has been little or no damage to grain in the shocks from sprouting over large sections of the northern and western parts of the state, but there has been considerable bleaching which will lower the grade, it was reported. Cool nights and cool, drying winds which have followed recent rains in the north and west have kept the grain from sprouting to any great degree, except the bun-

DAVIS SCENTS FALL VICTORY

Candidate Says He's Confident of Dem Success

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 8.—John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, began today the last of his drive in western New York state, leaving here for a noon-day speaking engagement at Rochester, and the final address of the tour tonight in Buffalo. He described his visit to Schenectady, Albany, Utica and here as "particularly encouraging" and told members of his party he now was entirely confident the November verdict would be favorable to the Democratic national and state tickets.

NO SUEY IN CHINA
Peking, Oct. 8.—Chop suey is unknown to Chinese housewives. Export in the American quarter at Shanghai, there is not a dish of chop suey in China. The food was invented by Li Hungchang during a visit to the United States. He concocted the dish in a hurry to entertain some American guests. To the concoction was added a pungent sauce made from the soya bean. He told his guests that the dish was called "chop suey."

MUCH WORK TO DO
Minot, Oct. 8.—There is much thrashing to be done in northwestern North Dakota and a misty rain which has been falling here today will further delay the work. There is as much as 75 percent of the thrashing still to be done in many sections, while in a few parts practically no thrashing at all has been done. In other areas the work is practically complete.

There has been a fairly good supply of harvest hands here, but idle men are beginning to drift out, although there seems to still be a good supply. There have been no reports of damage from sprouted grains received here.

YOM KIPPUR IS OBSERVED

Between 300 and 400 Hebrews
Gather Here

Between 300 and 400 people of Bismarck and many towns in western North Dakota, adherents of the Hebrew faith, are in Bismarck today for the observance of Yom Kippur, which is being held in the Elks Hall. Today is the Day of Atonement. Some of those here have come from a distance of 150 miles.

Today is the Day of Atonement, celebrated by continuous services from morning until evening. A strict fast day from sunset last night until sunset tonight is observed. Rabbi H. Eisenberg of Bismarck and Rabbi Mackovitz of St. Paul are in charge. Services were held last evening from six to nine o'clock. After the Atonement has been completed there will be rejoicing, with a feast and a dance.

FANS AT TRIAL
Casablanca, Morocco, Oct. 8.—A local perfumery establishment capitalized on the widespread interest in a recent murder trial by distributing multicolored fans about the court room, with advertisements of the firm printed on them. The murder case, growing out of a love affair, was followed chiefly by women.

'HOPPERS FOR BAIT
Okanagan, Wash., Oct. 8.—Struck by a grasshopper plague, the farmers and orchardists of this region have inserted advertisements in city papers calling attention to the efficiency of the insects as trout bait. They are offering to sell the grass hoppers by the quart, and in this way are enabled to buy sufficient poison to destroy the pest.

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem. Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more Concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

An early start means early relief.

GIANT AIRSHIP
FLYING ALONG
AT EASY SPEED

Shenandoah, Leaving New York, Is Sighted Over Atlanta, Georgia, Today

KEEPS RIGHT ON GOING

Due to Arrive in Texas Tonight on Cross-Country
Trip, Is Report

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 8.—The Shenandoah was sighted in the northeastern portion of Atlanta at 4:35 o'clock central standard time.
Her motors could be heard over a wide area.

Lieut. Palmer, aboard the Shenandoah, did most of the talking in a radio conversation with Fort Mc-Pherson. He said that when they passed over Atlanta the ship was 2,200 feet up and was traveling about 45 knots, which speed it would keep up indefinitely.

"I will not attempt to give any schedule," Lieut. Palmer said, "but let the press figure out when we are due at certain points."

Lieut. Palmer said that there were no press dispatches to be read at this time. The correspondent Junius B. Wood was too ambitious yesterday, he said, and worked himself out sending dispatches.

He is now getting a much needed rest.

PREPARE FOR HER
Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 8.—According to Navy officials and air navigators who are here awaiting the arrival of the Shenandoah the big airship should arrive in Fort Worth about 7 o'clock tonight.
They based this on calculation of the vessel's present speed. Preparations are being made to receive the ship about dusk.

Aboard Shenandoah—Ideal air sailing weather prevailed throughout the first 12 hours of the nine-day voyage. The big airship was driving straight into a 12-mile-an-hour current; the immense gas-filled tube, with its cabin and power gondola, were riding as smoothly as if on a bed of feathers, going at 40 miles an hour.

Crossed James River
The ship, at that time, had crossed the James river at Lynchburg.
Lights burned in the house beneath and in the distance along the horizon could be seen the glow of cities and villages.

Aboard the big ship, limited as to quarters and with everything stripped down to the minimum of weight, the routine went on like on any naval ship at sea.

GIANT AIRSHIP FLYING ALONG AT EASY SPEED

Shenandoah, Leaving New York, Is Sighted Over Atlanta, Georgia, Today

KEEPS RIGHT ON GOING

Due to Arrive in Texas Tonight on Cross-Country Trip, Is Report

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 8.—The Shenandoah was sighted in the northeastern portion of Atlanta at 4:35 o'clock central standard time. Her motors could be heard over a wide area.

Lieut. Palmer, aboard the Shenandoah, did most of the talking in a radio conversation with Fort McPherson. He said that when they passed over Atlanta the ship was 2,200 feet up and was traveling about 45 knots, which speed it would keep up indefinitely. "I will not attempt to give any schedule," Lieut. Palmer said, "but let the press figure out when we are due at certain points."

Lieut. Palmer said that there were no press dispatches to be read at this time. The correspondent Junius B. Wood was too ambitious yesterday, he said, "and worked himself out sending dispatches."

He is now getting a much needed rest."

PREPARE FOR HER

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 8.—According to Navy officials and air navigators who are here awaiting the arrival of the Shenandoah the big airship should arrive in Fort Worth about 7 o'clock tonight. They based this on calculation of the vessel's present speed. Preparations are being made to receive the ship about dusk.

Aboard Shenandoah—Ideal air sailing weather prevailed through the first 12 hours of the nine thousand mile voyage of the big navy dirigible Shenandoah from coast to coast the 12 hours being completed at 9 o'clock last night.

Winds which are hot felt on the surface were met in the upper level of the sky between 1,000 and 3,000 feet. At 8 p. m., the ship was driving straight into a 12-mile-an-hour current; all five motors were going; the immense gas filled tube, with its cabin and power gondolas, were riding as smoothly as if it were a bed of feathers, going at 40 miles an hour.

Crosses James River

The ship, at that time, had crossed the James River at Lynchburg. Lights burned in the house beneath and in the distance along the horizon could be seen the glow of cities and villages.

Aboard the big ship, limited as to quarters and with everything stripped down to the minimum of weight, the routine went on like on any naval ship at sea.

R. L. Best and J. I. Huyck, co-partners doing business under the firm name of Best & Huyck, The Boston, and R. L. Best and J. I. Huyck, as individuals.

R. L. Best and J. I. Huyck, co-partners doing business under the firm name of Best & Huyck, The Boston, and as individuals, of Bismarck, in the County of Burleigh, State of North Dakota, in said District, respectfully represent:

That on the 16th day of July, 1924, last past, said R. L. Best and J. I. Huyck, as said co-partners and as individuals were duly adjudged bankrupts under the Acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that they have duly surrendered all their property and rights of property and have fully complied with all the requirements of said Acts and of the orders of the court touching their bankruptcy.

WHEREFORE they pray that they as co-partners and as individuals may be decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against their estates under said Bankrupt Acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 19th day of September, A. D. 1924.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT CRISIS

Ramsay MacDonald, the English premier and head of the first Labor Party government, received support more general than might have been expected for the first radical government. The news that the government's fall is impending, therefore, has occasioned surprise among the casual observers of its progress.
The Irish question again has become troublesome, but the rock on which the party may smash itself is the Russian treaty. A commercial treaty was negotiated with Soviet Russia. The Russian government, needing money perhaps more than anything else, sought to have the British government guarantee a loan. There was hesitation and rejection of the proposition but now the government is preparing to do this. England has never guaranteed a loan for her colonies or for any other foreign power. It is a precedent which strikes alarm in that nation, especially when Russia owes British interests huge sums which she apparently does not intend to repay.

Mr. MacDonald has been found in disagreement with his party often. A faction of his support has been steadily endeavoring to drive the government to commitment to absolute socialism, and even to communism. Mr. MacDonald finds himself unable to hold to a middle ground, and finds, too, that the reason he commanded united radical support at the start was because the ultra-radicals saw his administration as an entering wedge in furtherance of their ultimate aims.

The Conservatives and Liberals have had the power at any time to force the downfall of the government, but through lack of united action, in part due to their desire to give the Labor Government an opportunity in a serious situation, have not done so. They appear adamant in their opposition to the Russian treaty, and if they remain so the government must resign or call for a general election. MacDonald indicates he will choose the latter course, and Great Britain faces the prospect of the most important election in her history.

HELP PREVENT A DEADLOCK

Many decades have passed since there was as much talk about the presidential election being "thrown into Congress" by reason of a deadlock, as there is this year.

In the 1920 election, less than 27 millions of citizens voted, while over 25 million citizens neglected to vote.

If a considerable part of those 25 million negligent voters could be induced to vote this year, there'll be less chance of the election going into Congress with attendant possibilities of the winner being someone the majority of the citizens never intended.

The law of averages does not intrude to any great extent. It's true that 27 million voters are apt to vote much like a million—that is, divide their votes among candidates in the same percentages. But the more-than-25-million who did not vote in 1920 are an unknown quantity, because most of them are chronic nonvoters. They must have a voice in the decision, for real government by majority. So, then, spread the word:

Vote without fail! Vote without fail! Vote without fail!
YOUR vote is needed! YOUR vote is needed. YOUR vote is needed!

RIGHTS

Sixteen states band together to sue the national government. They seek the return of 300 million dollars of direct taxes that were paid after the Civil War. These taxes were levied on certain manufactured goods. The claim for refund is complicated.

This lawsuit reminds us of something most of us have forgotten—the matter of state rights. Our national government is a league of small countries or states. Uncle Sam is vital. But he is not all-embracing and supreme in everything, even though police power is about the only remaining major function of local government that hasn't been centralized in Washington, D. C.

The death rate from tuberculosis has been reduced 68 per cent in Framingham, Mass., after seven years of effort. The town was selected as a "laboratory experiment" by the National Tuberculosis Association.

A disease, whose death rate can be cut 68 per cent, can eventually be wiped out entirely.

If the time ever comes when man completely conquers germs, the problem of over-production will be worse than all diseases combined. Over-production, of course, will by its very nature breed new diseases. There is no escape from death.

UNEXPECTED

We live very close to the Thin Wall that separates us from the hereafter, even though many do scheme and act as relentlessly and without conscience as if they expected to live forever.

William Olson of Chicago came home to his rooming-house so happy and full of pep that he danced a jig. Suddenly fell dead. His engine was worn out and he didn't know it.

MEMOIRS OF THE WHITE HOUSE

(New York Evening World)
Unless gossip is irresponsible we have the promise of a flood of memoirs dealing with the White House and its life from women who have presided there, or who have been conspicuous in its social activities.

Mrs. Wilson is said to plan the editing of the personal letters of her husband for publication. Mrs. Harding is quoted as intending to prepare an elaborate biography of her husband in collaboration with an experienced biographer. And—most exciting of all—the gossips do say that Alice Roosevelt Longworth is writing her memoirs. This is unusual, thus making it all the more interesting.

Mrs. Taft is the first of the women of the White House, we believe, to have written memoirs. Her book is very human and will be of real value to the future historian of the mansion of the presidents. But no other "first lady" had established a precedent. Comparatively few of them would have been capable of a literary venture. Dolly Madison could have given us a fascinating volume of inculcated value if she could have written—but her personal letters point to her literary limitations.

The only lady of the White House in the earlier days who has left us pictures of the life there was the daughter-in-law of John Tyler, who was the hostess until Tyler's second marriage, and her published letters to her sister are sprightly, humorous, very human, altogether delightful. But she was young, and life was interesting—all a drama, not vastly different from that which she had followed on the stage. No one can read these letters without a regret that more have not followed her example.

NEW YORK'S NEGRO POPULATION

(Konrad Bercovici in Harper's Magazine)

There are between 300,000 and 400,000 colored people in Greater New York. In the last census there were not one-tenth that many. All shades and all sizes. Woolly-haired, immense, half-lumbering Africans as black as pitch. Brown-colored bronzed Negroes, mahogany blondes, down through all nuances to the almost white negro, straight-haired and blue-eyed, whom nobody suspects.

I have seen perfectly black negroes of long Spanish faces, with the crooked penetrating eyes of the Moor and the elegant gait of Iberians. I have met red-haired negroes with a wistful Irish smile. I have friends of a lighter shade, from New Orleans, where they have been thoroughly mixed with the French that they are hardly to be distinguished; with all the love of color and softness of one race and the precision of mind and clarity of the other. The Italians have mixed with the negroes, and the Slavs and the English and the Mexicans and the Indians.

Of these mixtures the ones with Indian blood are the finest. And there are Jewish negroes—Abyssinian Jews, stout and long-bearded, hook-nosed, fat-shanked, real Jews. They are the color of their own people, but they are not of their own people. They are compelled to live among people of an alien faith instead of among their own coreligionists.

Four hundred thousand negroes in New York! There has never been such a number of negroes in any one place, not only on this continent, but on any other continent before or now. Every twelfth person in Greater New York is a negro or has negro blood.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Back from Mars to the Moon went Snoodle and the Twins on the white night-mare. Snoodle came first and Nancy next and then Nick. "Well, did you find Tweeknose and the lost sleepy sand?" asked the Dream Maker Man when they arrived.

"No, he wasn't on Mars," said the Twins. "We looked everywhere." "Well, then," said the wise old Dream Maker Man, "we'll have to look some more. It's almost moon-down now, and the earth and the sleepy sand simply must be found."

"I should say so," said the poor Sand Man who was getting discouraged and a little nervous. "Cheer up, we'll find it," said the Dream Maker Man heartily. "Twins you may go with my second son, Snuggle, on his black night-mare, to look for the lost sleepy sand. Perhaps Tweeknose has gone to Venus. You might have a look there."

"Oh, do go as fast as you can," begged the poor Sand Man who was really at his wits end to know what to do. "Tweeknose must be somewhere."

"Perhaps he's gone down to the earth to put the babies to sleep himself," said Nick.

"Little hope of that," sighed the Sand Man. "I know him too well, the rascal! Time and again I've just gotten a kiddy to sleep when along he'd come and give its nose a tweak and wake it all up again. Then he'd jump out of the window and laugh and laugh on his way back to Gnomeland—as though it was funny!"

"Come, on if you are going!" cried Snuggle, jumping up on his black night-mare and sitting well forward to make room for the Twins.

As soon as they were seated, Nancy in the middle and Nick last, the magic horse started along the Milky Way to the star called Venus. Club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub!

The Busy Man's Newspaper

went the black mare's hoofs as she galloped through the sky.
At last the Twins and Snuggle came to Venus.

Tap, tap, tap! went Snuggle on the great gate in the wall.

"Who's there?" asked a voice.

"And what do you want?"

"We're messengers of the Sand Man and we want the bag of sleepy sand," said Snuggle.

"Say the multiplication table backwards up to ninety," said the voice and I'll open the gate if you get it right. We're very particular about the people we let in. If you're not good in arithmetic, we don't want you. It's the law of—"

But he got no further.

"Jimmy Jimmy!" said Nick quickly and instantly the door opened and the horse started ahead.

The charm had worked again.

The people of Venus were even queerer than the green beards of Mars. Their chin whiskers were made of shavings that hung in long curls.

"Did you see a gnome called Tweeknose?" asked Nancy to change the subject.

"A nose called Tweeknose? No, I didn't," said Shaving Beard. "Whose is it?"

Snuggle and the Twins rode on without telling him. There had been too much talking already.

I was greatly annoyed with that woman customer, but I think I was to blame after all. I brought it on myself by giving her a chance to draw the wrong inference about Walter and myself. I shall never do it again.

I'm not going to advise you about your husband. I think that is one of the silliest things another person can do. Although John loves you devotedly, from a man's point of view, I know that John thinks he is well within his rights, and you, loving and loyal as you are, I now think he is quite outside them.

But, oh, let me tell you something, Leslie—unless you feel that your life is unbearable, unless you can look ahead to an old age without your husband, try and explain to him so that he cannot fail to understand your position and your point of view. I am sure, then, you will come together.

Do not stand entirely on your rights, dear. Marriage is wholly a life in which there is giving and taking every day, and I, who know, must tell you that after two people have been married and lived together in close companionship; after they have mingled both tears and laughter, joy and grief, they cannot part without great unhappiness to both.

I think I showed you that letter from Harry to me. I know he has been quite unhappy since he left me, and it has saddened me greatly; for I, who know, have found happiness. I did not tell you, however, my dear, of the loneliness that was mine after Harry left me. Sometimes I was almost ready to forgive and forget all he had done if he would just come back to me.

Nature has put something into a woman's heart that makes it impossible for her to be happy unless she loves something. It may be a husband or a child, a cat or a dog, an ideal or a business, an institution or a crusade; but she must have something in her life that satisfies the maternal urge.

I think at times I should have gone mad if it had not been for the little shop. I have said something of this kind to Walter, and strange as it may seem—he being a man—he has understood the feeling. He says it is because he lived and felt the want of me so long before I came to him.

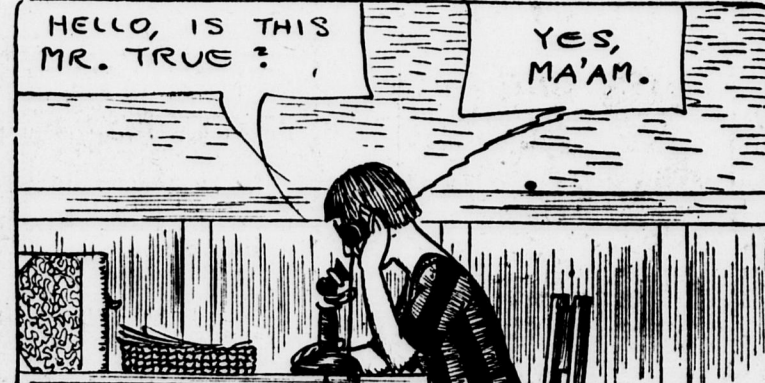

He thinks the time has come for you to let it be known that we are in partnership in the lingerie shop. Both Walter and I are sure that married people need a little vacation from each other occasionally. It is said that we all grow tired, physically, mentally and spiritually, and those who are nearest and dearest to us feel the consequences of nerves filled with the poison of fatigue and boredom.

If I told this to anyone but you, dear Leslie, that person would think that already Walter and I were grown tired; but you know, my dear, this is not so. We are still so delightedly happy I am afraid it is too good to be true—too good to last. I think he feels the same, so we are trying to insure our future against that terrible, corroding weariness which monotony—even the monotony of great and constant happiness—brings.

Walter does not want me to give up the shop. He has come to the conclusion that a woman should have something outside of absolute domesticity, and the catering to her husband, to take up her mind. I know he would be perfectly content if I supervised the shop part of the time, and allowed myself occasionally to leave it entirely in your care.

We are thinking very much of Your cost of living is only about 42 per cent higher than it was before the war, according to economists. In other words, you can buy as much for $1.62 as you could for $1 in 1914.

This claim must get the average man's goat in a while, as he checks up and discovers that he's spending a lot more than in the good old days when he could buy a meal for a quarter.

The joker is in the fact that the economists fail to make allowances for the advanced standard of living.

It may be true that your bills for basic foods, rent, clothing necessities, etc., are only 62 per cent higher than before the war. And that, by spending $1.62 you can buy as much as you formerly could for $1.

But, since 1914, an advancing standard of living has added items to the list of "necessities" that were without question in the luxury class back yonder.

The "cost of living" is more than the matter of enough to clothe the body warmly, supply it adequately with food and shelter.

The "cost of living" also includes non-essentials which the average person imagines he must have in order to maintain his social standing. A lot of foolishness is included, such as the waning of the respectability of patched trousers and mended furniture.

It isn't so much the increased price of what we used to buy, as it is a matter of the price of things we formerly never dreamed of buying. And that's chiefly why the average man finds he has less cash on hand after paying his bills, not to mention that the average income may not have increased apace with the so-called advancing standard of living.

It is possible to live almost as cheaply now as 60 or 110 years ago—provided one would be satisfied with the old-time standard of living which supplied only the simplest and most urgent wants.

And, as a matter of fact, none of us would have to work more than a few hours a day if we returned to the old-time standard of living. We have to work long hours because we demand more commodities and services in daily life than was the custom long ago.

The increased cost of living is to considerable extent the price of increased standard of living.

FABLES ON HEALTH EXERCISE IN BED

"I guess the trouble with you, as with most people, in doing your setting-up exercises in the morning is that you don't want to get up," comments the physical expert to Mr. Jones.

That's all right. Don't get up! Start your exercises in bed and soon you will be awake and ready for them.

The thing to do is this: When you have awakened, begin to yawn. Keep it up! Yawn four or five times for you will be stretching your chest and getting a good inhalation.

Then stretch! Make it a good long stretch and roll over, stretching again and again.

You still don't have to leave the bed!

Some leg exercises can be done once the covers have been kicked off.

Lie on your back and bend your knees forward, inhaling deeply and then exhaling, relaxing for a moment. Then kick both feet vigorously and pump the air with them, as though riding a bicycle.

After that you can leap out of bed and start some floor exercises.

OPPORTUNITY IN AMERICA

WILLIAM E. KNOX

Radical demagogues sometimes accuse the capitalist system with favoring the rich and powerful as against the poor and lowly. Fifty-three years ago an Irish lad of nine was brought to the United States by his parents. He went to the public school and then began work as an office boy. A few days ago, on October 1, he was elected president of the American Bankers Association, the world's largest financial organization. He is president of one of the largest savings banks in the United States, the Bowers Savings Bank of New York City. This election of William E. Knox, who has risen from Irish immigrant to chief of American bankers, is the most striking reminder of the year of the democracy of opportunity in capitalistic America.

a few seconds to write the name of the payee properly. A check made out to "Bears" may be cashed by any one who gets it. It is regrettable but true that not every one is honest. You know that lots of people would take a five dollar bill if they happened to find it. A check made payable to bearer or to "cash" is just as tempting to them as a five dollar bill would be.

"But, Auntie, it was so frightfully mean to steal from the hospital!" "You invited this particular theft by neglecting to make your check out properly," Aunt Emmy admonished Helen. "You may be glad your loss is no greater. Even when you go to the bank for money yourself you should not make your check payable to cash. Suppose you should lose it on the way? The same thing that happened to the hospital check might happen to it. Better take an extra minute and make the check out to yourself, sign your name to it as usual and endorse it just as though it were one you received from someone else."

"That seems like a lot of times to sign your own name on one little check, doesn't it, Auntie?" objected Helen.

"It's ever so much better to be on the safe side than to lose your money through carelessness," retorted Aunt Emmy. — Anne B. Aymes.

Government Does Not Own Reserve Banks

In the discussion of the Federal Reserve Banks and their operations, undue emphasis has frequently been placed on their relation to the government, and they are frequently called "government banks." As a matter of fact, they are not "government banks" in a true sense, but are corporations organized under an act of Congress, and owned entirely by their member banks. The government does not hold a single share of their stock. The control of the banks' operations is also largely in the hands of member banks, who elect two-thirds of the Federal Reserve bank directors, the remaining one-third being appointed by the government to represent the interest of the government and the public.

The Federal Reserve banks, it is true, are agents of the government in addition to their other activities, and in this capacity they must follow the instructions of the government in handling transactions which they perform simply as agents. We believe that it is important that the fact that a clear understanding of this point should be generally had, as many of the criticisms made against the Federal Reserve banks have been based on a misapprehension as to their relationship to the government. — American Bankers Association Journal.

On How Not to Make Out Checks.

"The most annoying thing has happened, Aunt Emmy," exclaimed Helen. "I sent a check for $5 to the hospital to help them in their drive and some one cashed it. Isn't it a shame, for I simply can't afford to send another?"

"I don't see how that could happen," said Aunt Emmy. "If you made out the check properly."

"Why, of course, I did," Helen said. "I made it out just as I always do, to 'bearer.'"

Aunt Emmy laughed. "No wonder you lost it!" she said. "Any one at all could cash a check made out like that. It's very careless of you to do it, no matter to whom the check is given. It would only take

Washington, Oct. 8.—Every year the aristocratic blue book finds a larger number of its cherished names cropping out in the commercial-looking business directory.

The flapper who convinced all the novelists and reformers that she was going to her own and to society's destruction, did a right about face and went into a business.

She made good and her followers are increasing.

Even in staid Washington, the national capital, the one city in this country where society retains some of its old-time glamor and formality, we find the daughters of diplomats and statesmen pre-paring the mixed diet of work and play, with accent on the work.

Some of the most socially prominent young women there have a business or profession and prefer to be self-supporting.

Dorothy Mondell, daughter of Frank W. Mondell, former congressman and prominent political figure, is attempting to make the Mondell name mean something in the literary world.

Because she knows society well, she is able to make very valuable contributions to the society columns and her insight into both social and political affairs may make her a Margot Asquith someday.

Nancy Hoyt, daughter of the so-called general under ex-President Taft, is another diplomatic daughter who has taken up short story writing. Dorothy Bennett, a niece of G. Bascum Slomp, secretary to President Coolidge, is a dramatic critic.

Corrine Stephens, daughter of Mrs. John E. Stephens, is a real go-getter. She is saleswoman for an automobile concern and also brings victims to the dotted line stage in a remarkably short time.

Beatrice Henning, daughter of Assistant Secretary of Labor E. J. Henning, has just started society by entering a business college with a view to a career. She is a Lucy Stone League, and expects to retain her own name even after her marriage, which may not be in the future, as her engagement has been announced.

Many other girls in Washington society are contemplating careers.

They will make their future home in this city after October 11. Mr. Hartley is an employee of the International Harvester Company.

PROGRESSIVE MOTHER'S CLUB MEETS

The Progressive Mother's Club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Earl Sparks. Roll Call was answered to by the topic, North Dakota Educators. Mrs. Lowell Taft gave an interesting topic, "Child Training." Round table discussion was upon the topic, "The Effects of Jazz on Young People." Mrs. W. J. Wilcox, secretary of the club is attending the Federation Meet being held in Minot.

CAPITOL

The production made by Universal of Victor Hugo's immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Capitol Theatre, has met with high favor, exceeding any big production within ready memory and promising a percentage most gratifying to all who have the welfare of the screen at heart. In massiveness, this production is a revelation and gives truth to the pronouncement by able critics that it eclipses anything previously offered.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT CRISIS

Ramsay MacDonald, the English premier and head of the first Labor Party government, received support more general than might have been expected for the first radical government. The news that the government's fall is impending, therefore, has occasioned surprise among the casual observers of its progress.

The Irish question again has become troublesome, but the rock on which the party may smash itself is the Russian treaty. A commercial treaty was negotiated with Soviet Russia. The Russian government, needing money perhaps more than anything else, sought to have the British government guarantee a loan. There was hesitation and rejection of the proposition but now the government is preparing to do this. England has never guaranteed a loan for her colonies or for any other foreign power. It is a precedent which strikes alarm in that nation, especially when Russia owes British interests huge sums which she apparently does not intend to repay.

Mr. MacDonald has been found in disagreement with his party often. A faction of his support has been steadily endeavoring to drive the government to commitment to absolute socialism, and even to communism. Mr. MacDonald finds himself unable to hold to a middle ground, and finds, too, that the reason he commanded united radical support at the start was because the ultra-radicals saw his administration as an entering wedge in furtherance of their ultimate aims.

The Conservatives and Liberals have had the power at any time to force the downfall of the government, but through lack of united action, in part due to their desire to give the Labor Government an opportunity in a serious situation, have not done so. They appear adamant in their opposition to the Russian treaty, and if they remain so the government must resign or call for a general election. MacDonald indicates he will choose the latter course, and Great Britain faces the prospect of the most important election in her history.

HELP PREVENT A DEADLOCK

Many decades have passed since there was as much talk about the presidential election being "thrown into Congress" by reason of a deadlock, as there is this year.

In the 1920 election, less than 27 million of citizens voted, while over 25 million citizens neglected to vote.

If a considerable part of those 25 million negligent voters can be induced to vote this year, there'll be less chance of the election going into Congress with attendant possibilities of the winner being someone the majority of the citizens never intended.

The law of averages does not intrude to any great extent. It's true that 27 million voters are apt to vote much like a million—that is, divide their votes among candidates in the same percentages. But the more-than-25-million who did not vote in 1920 are an unknown quantity, because most of them are chronic nonvoters. They must have a voice in the decision, for real government by majority. So, then, spread the word:

Vote without fail! Vote without fail! Vote without fail!

YOUR vote is needed! YOUR vote is needed. YOUR vote is needed!

RIGHTS

Sixteen states band together to sue the national government. They seek the return of 300 million dollars of direct taxes that were paid after the Civil War. These taxes were levied on certain manufactured goods. The claim for refund is complicated.

This lawsuit reminds us of something most of us have forgotten—the matter of state rights. Our national government is a league of small countries or states. Uncle Sam is vital. But he is not all-embracing and supreme in everything, even though police power is about the only remaining major function of local government that hasn't been centralized in Washington, D. C.

T. B.

The death rate from tuberculosis has been reduced 68 per cent in Framingham, Mass., after seven years of effort. This town was selected as a "laboratory experiment" by the National Tuberculosis Association.

A disease, whose death rate can be cut 68 per cent, can eventually be wiped out entirely.

If the time ever comes when man completely conquers germs, the problem of over-production will be worse than all diseases combined. Over-production, of course, will by its very nature breed new diseases. There is no escape from death.

UNEXPECTED

We live very close to the Thin Wall that separates us from the hereafter, even though many do scheme and act as relentlessly and without conscience as if they expected to live forever.

William Olson of Chicago came home to his rooming-house so happy and full of pep that he danced a jig. Suddenly fell dead. His engine was worn out and he didn't know it.

MEMOIRS OF THE WHITE HOUSE

(New York Evening World)
Unless gossip is irresponsible we have the promise of a flood of memoirs dealing with the White House and its life from women who have presided there, or who have been conspicuous in its social activities.

Mrs. Wilson is said to plan the editing of the personal letters of her husband for publication. Mrs. Harding is quoted as intending to prepare an elaborate biography of her husband in collaboration with an experienced biographer. And—most exciting of all—the gossips do say that Alice Roosevelt Longworth is writing her memoirs. This is unusual, thus making it all the more interesting.

Mrs. Taft is the first of the women of the White House, we believe, to have written memoirs. Her book is very human and will be of real value to the future historian of the mansion of the president. But no other "first lady" had established a precedent. Comparatively few of them would have been capable of a literary venture. Dolly Madison could have given us a fascinating volume of incalculable value if she could have written—but her personal letters point to her literary limitations.

The only lady of the White House in the earlier days who has left us pictures of the life there was the daughter-in-law of John Tyler, who was the hostess until Tyler's second marriage, and her published letters to her sister are sprightly, humorous, very human, altogether delightful. But she was young, and life was interesting—all a drama, not vastly different from that which she had followed on the stage. No one can add these letters without a regret that more have not followed her example.

NEW YORK'S NEGRO POPULATION

There are between 300,000 and 400,000 colored people in Greater New York. In the last census there were not one-tenth that many. All shades and all sizes. Woolly-haired, immense, half-lumbering Africans as black as pitch. Brown-colored-bronzed men and women, mahogany blond down through all nuances to the almost white negro, straight-haired and blue-eyed, whom nobody suspects.

I have seen perfectly black negroes of long Spanish faces, with the cruel penetrating eyes of the Moor and the elegant gait of Iberians. I have met red-haired negroes with a wistful Irish smile. I have friends of a lighter shade, from New Orleans, where they have so thoroughly mixed with the French that they are hardly to be distinguished; with all the love of color and softness of one race and the precision of mind and clarity of the other. The Italians have mixed with the negroes, and the Slavs and the English, and the Mexicans and the Indians.

Of these mixtures the ones with Indian blood are the finest. And there are Jewish negroes—Anglo-sinners, white and long-bearded, hooked noses, real Jews—who because of their color are compelled to live among people of an alien faith instead of among their own coreligionists. Four hundred thousand negroes in New York! There has never been such a number of negroes in any one place, not only on this continent, but on any other continent before or now. Every twelfth person in Greater New York is a negro or has negro blood.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Back from Mars to the Moon went Snoozle and the Twins on the white night-mare. Snoozle came first and Nancy next and then Nick. "Well, did you find Tweekanose and the lost sleepy sand?" asked the Dream Maker Man when they arrived.

"No, he wasn't on Mars," said the Twins. "We looked everywhere. A little while ago," sighed the Dream Maker Man, "we'll have to look some more. It's almost moon-up down on the earth and the sleepy sand simply must be found."

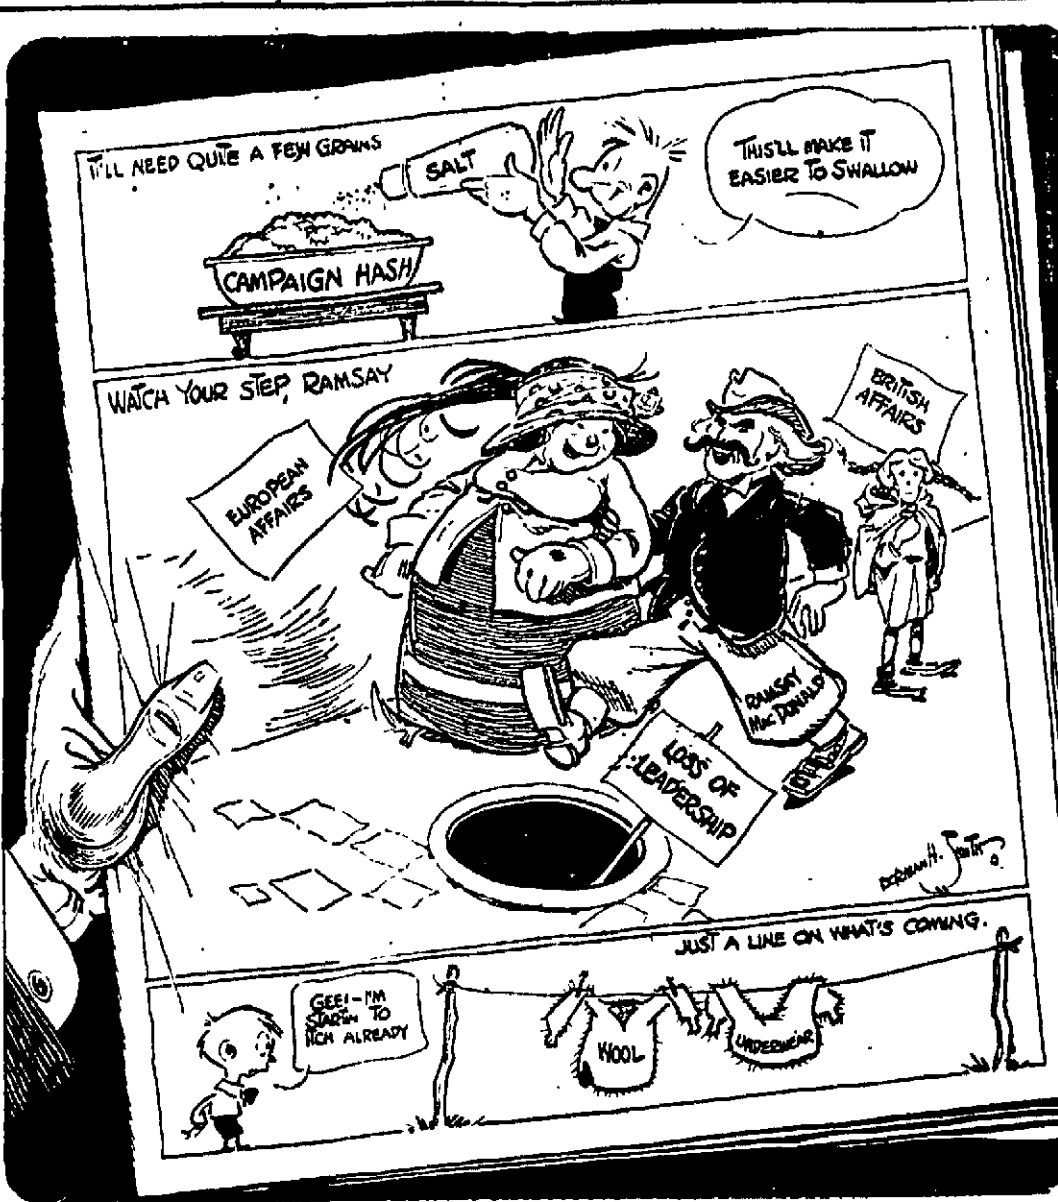

"I should say so," said the poor Sand Man who was getting discouraged and a little nervous. "Cheer up, we'll find it," said the Dream Maker Man heartily. "Twins you may go with my second son, Snuggles, on his black night-mare, to look for the lost sleepy sand. Perhaps Tweekanose has gone to Venus. You might have a look there."

"Oh, do go as fast as you can," begged the poor Sand Man who was really at his wit's end to know what to do. "Tweekanose must be somewhere."

"Perhaps he's gone down to the earth to put the babies to sleep himself," said Nick. "Little while of that," sighed the Sand Man. "I know him too well. The rascal! Time and again I've just gotten a kiddy to sleep when along he'd come and give its nose a tweak and wake it all up again. Then he'd jump out of the window and laugh and laugh on his way back to Gnomeland—as though it was jolly!"

"Come, on if you are going," cried Snuggles, jumping up on his black night-mare and sitting well forward to make room for the Twins. As soon as they were seated, Nancy in the middle and Nick last, the magic horse started along the Milky Way to the star called Venus. Club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub!

I was greatly annoyed with that woman customer, but I think I was to blame after all. I brought it on myself by giving her a chance to draw the wrong inference about Walter and myself. I shall never do it again.

I'm not going to advise you about your husband. I think that is one of the silliest things another person can do. Although John loves you devotedly, from a man's point of view, I know that John thinks he is well within his rights, and you, loving and loyal as you are, I now think he is quite outside them.

But, oh, let me tell you something, Leslie—unless you feel that your life is unbearable, unless you can look ahead to an old age without your husband, try and explain to him so that he cannot fail to understand your position and your point of view. I am sure, then, you will come together.

Do not stand entirely on your rights, dear. Marriage is wholly a life in which there is giving and taking every day, and I, who know, must tell you that after two people have been married and lived together in close companionship; after they have mingled both tears and laughter, joy and grief, they cannot part without great unhappiness to both.

I think I showed you that letter from Harry to me. I know he has been quite unhappy since he left me, and it has saddened me greatly; for I, you know, have found happiness. I did not tell you, however, my dear, of the loneliness that was mine after Harry left me. Sometimes I was almost ready to forgive and forget all he had done if he would just come back to me.

KEEPING UP YOUR END

By Albert Apple

Your cost of living is only about 42 per cent higher than it was before the war, according to economists. In other words, you can buy as much for $1.62 as you could for $1 in 1914.

This claim must get the average man's goat in a while, as he checks up and discovers that he's spending a lot more than in the good old days when he could buy a meal for a quarter.

The joker is in the fact that the economists fail to make allowances for the advanced standard of living.

It may be true that your bills for basic foods, rent, clothing necessities, etc., are only 62 per cent higher than before the war. And that, by spending $1.62 you can buy as much as you formerly could for $1.

But, since 1914, an advancing standard of living has added items to the list of "necessities" that were without question in the luxury class back yonder.

The "cost of living" is more than the matter of enough to clothe the body warmly, supply it adequately with food and shelter.

The "cost of living" also includes non-essentials which the average person imagines he must have in order to maintain his social standing. A lot of foolishness is included, such as the waning of the respectability of patched trousers and mended furniture.

It isn't so much the increased price of what we used to buy, as it is a matter of the price of things we formerly never dreamed of buying. And that's chiefly why the average man finds he has less cash on hand after paying his bills, not to mention that the average income may not have increased apace with the so-called advancing standard of living.

It is possible to live almost as cheaply now as 60 or 110 years ago—provided one would be satisfied with the old-time standard of living which supplied only the simplest and most urgent wants.

And, as a matter of fact, none of us would have to work more than a few hours a day if we returned to the old-time standard of living. We have to work long hours because we demand more commodities and services in daily life than was the custom long ago.

The increased cost of living is to considerable extent the price of increased standard of living.

FABLES ON HEALTH

EXERCISE IN BED

"I guess the trouble with you, as with most people, in doing your setting-up exercises in the morning is that you don't want to get up," comments the physical expert to Mr. Jones.

That's all right. Don't get up! Start your exercises in bed and soon you will be awake and ready for them.

The thing to do is this: When you have awakened, begin to yawn. Keep it up! Yawn four or five times for you will be stretching your chest and getting a good inhalation.

Then stretch! Make it a good long stretch and roll over, stretching again and again.

You still don't have to leave the bed!

Some leg exercises can be done once the covers have been kicked off. Lie on your back and bend your knees forward, inhaling deeply and then exhaling, relaxing for a moment. Then kick both feet vigorously and pump the air with them, as though riding a bicycle.

After that you can leap out of bed and start some floor exercises.

OPPORTUNITY IN AMERICA

a few seconds to write the name of the payee properly. A check made out to "Bosser" may be cashed by any one who reads it. It is regrettable but true that not every one is honest. You know that lots of people would take a five dollar bill if it happened to find it. A check made payable to bearer or to "cash" is just as tempting to them as a five dollar bill would be.

"But, Aunt, it was so frightfully mean to steal from the hospital!"

"You invited this particular theft by neglecting to make your check out properly," Aunt Emmy admonished Helen. "You may be glad your loss is no greater. Even when you go to the bank for money yourself you should not make your check payable to cash. Suppose you should lose it on the way? The same thing that happened to the hospital check might happen to it. Better take an extra minute and make the check out to yourself, sign your name to it as usual and endorse it just as though it were one you received from someone else."

"That seems like a lot of times to sign your own name on one little check, doesn't it, Aunt?" objected Helen.

"It's ever so much better to be on the safe side than to lose your money through carelessness," retorted Aunt Emmy. — Anne B. Ayres.

Government Does Not Own Reserve Banks

In the discussion of the Federal Reserve banks and their operations, undue emphasis has frequently been placed on their relation to the government, and they are frequently called "government banks." As a matter of fact, they are not "government banks" in a true sense, but are corporations organized under an act of Congress, and owned entirely by their member banks. The government does not hold a single share of their stock. The control of the banks' operations is also largely in the hands of member banks, who elect two-thirds of the Federal Reserve bank directors, the remaining one-third being appointed by the government to represent the interest of the government and the public.

The Federal Reserve banks, it is true, are agents of the government in addition to their other activities, and in this capacity they must follow the instructions of the government in handling transactions which they perform simply as agents. We believe that it is important that the fact that a clear understanding of this point should be generally had, as many of the criticisms made against the Federal Reserve banks have been based on a misapprehension as to their relationship to the government.—American Bankers Association Journal.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On How Not to Make Out Checks.

"The most annoying thing has happened, Aunt Emmy," exclaimed Helen. "I sent a check for $5 to the hospital to help them in their drive and some one cashed it! Isn't it a shame, for I simply can't afford to send another?"

"I don't see how that could happen," said Aunt Emmy. "If you made out the check properly."

"Why, of course, I did," Helen said. "I made it out just as I always do, to 'Bosser.'"

Aunt Emmy laughed. "No wonder you lost it!" she said. "Any one at all could cash a check made out like that. It's very careless of you to do it, no matter to whom the check is given. It would only take

Knox, who has risen from Irish immigrant to chief of American bankers, is the most striking reminder of the year of the democracy of opportunity in capitalistic America.

WILLIAM E. KNOX

Radical demagogues sometimes accuse the capitalist system with favoring the rich and powerful as against the poor and lowly. Fifty-three years ago an Irish lad of nine was brought to the United States by his parents. He went to the public school and then began work as an office boy. A few days ago, on October 1, he was elected president of the American Bankers Association, the world's largest financial organization. He is president of one of the largest savings banks in the United States, the Bowery Savings Bank of New York City. This election of William E. Knox, who has risen from Irish immigrant to chief of American bankers, is the most striking reminder of the year of the democracy of opportunity in capitalistic America.

PLAYER FUND TOTAL GIVEN

Washington and New York
Players to Divide
$331,092.51

New York, Oct. 8.—Washington and New York players will divide a fund of $331,092.51, it was announced after the fourth world series game, the last from which the players receive a share of the receipts. The winners will get $148,991.63 and the losers $99,327.75.

The Giants have 26 eligible men, Senators only 23. Exact figures for each man cannot be computed because of the practice of doling out lump sums to certain ineligible players and attaches, but the approximate shares follow:

Each Washington player will receive $6,477 if the team wins the series, but only $4,319 if it loses. If the Giants win, each player will be entitled to about $6,731 but the amount will be cut to $3,821 if McGraw's team fails.

Brooklyn and New York, second league clubs in the two leagues, will receive $24,831.93 to be divided among its eligible players. Detroit and Pittsburgh finishing third, will each receive $16,554.62 to split.

Senators May Be Big
The total players' fund for 1923, a record year, was $362,783.04. Each winning Yankee received $6,530 and each losing Giant was given $3,663. The Senators, because only 23 men are eligible to divide the smaller fund of this year, will nevertheless approach the record Yankee figures if Harris' team wins the series.

LOCALS PLAY MINOT TEAM

Bismarck High School Takes on Tough Team

Bismarck High School's football team will take on a tough customer at Saturday, when the team journeys to Minot to meet the Magic eleven. Minot has practically the same team back, that went into the finals for the state championship last year.

The Minot crew, touted as one of the strongest teams in the state, offered a setback last Saturday, however, losing to Devils Lake by a score of 25 to 0. Long forward passing which Minot was unable to break so accounted for the victory. The game was played on a wet, soggy field.

FIRST BOUT ON CARD AT 8:30

The 10-round boxing match between Battling Krause, former Madison boy, and Joe Moug, former Madison boy, both of whom have won pugilistic honors outside the state, will get its start at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night at the city Auditorium with the first preliminary, it was announced today. A five-piece orchestra will furnish music just before the bout begins.

BEACH LOSES TO DICKINSON

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 8.—Dickinson high school defeated Beach yesterday by a 19 to 6 score in a hard fought battle. Neither team was able to score in the first two periods, but when the local offense got into action they went down the field for three touchdowns while the visitors were getting their single tally.

SUN COMES OUT IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 8.—After a night of rain the sun came out this morning and indications were that there would be good weather for the world series game this afternoon.

Jack Johnson For LaFollette, Speaks For Cash

Danville, Ill., Oct. 8.—Jack Johnson, former prize fighter, who recently announced that he had entered the evangelistic field, addressed a LaFollette and Wheeler political meeting last night but only after a second collection had been taken. Johnson spoke in the state armory before a gathering composed principally of negroes. After the collection the chairman announced that Johnson would not appear unless more money was taken and the hat was passed again. Johnson spoke for six minutes, urging his audience to vote for LaFollette and Wheeler in November.

Nettie Changed Her Plans

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

Nettie was packing the few things she was going to need in her suitcase. Once she and Cal were in Texas he would buy her a new outfit. He had promised to give her everything she wanted. And he could easily get a position there.

In a day and a night they would have left Turnpike forever. How drab the little town was, where Nettie had lived all her life! How she looked forward to the new life with Cal!

It had been love at first sight between them. For a long time they had both resisted, but love had got them in the end. And why shouldn't they be happy? Cal's wife, Mary, was a shrew and a scold, forever bustling about her house, eternally cleaning never giving any real thought to Cal's comfort.

So Cal and she were going away together. Mary had brought it all upon herself. Seven years Cal and Mary had been together. And there was no child—if there had been, that would have made a difference. As things were, it wasn't as if she and Cal were really doing Mary a wrong. Probably she would be glad to get a divorce.

Then Cal and she could get married in Texas and spend life gloriously together. Only, beneath her shrewishness Mary was curiously simple-minded. And Nettie and Mary had always been friends in a way. That was what jarred on Nettie and made her feel guilty of treachery. It wasn't a nice thing to have to do.

But then life was full of just such situations. One had to meet them as best one could. Her happiness and Cal's couldn't be sacrificed because of Mary's feelings. It wasn't as if she would care. Nettie went on mechanically putting her things together. She was nearly through when there came a ring at the bell. She went downstairs annoyed. It was no time to see visitors.

Mary was at the door! "Oh, come in, dear," said Nettie, forcing a smile to her lips. Mary came in. It was strange, sitting opposite Mary in the parlor, as they had often sat; looking at her and thinking of the deadly blow she meant to deal her.

"I just ran over, dear," said Mary. "I was feeling kind of lonesome. Cal's away at the office so much. In the evenings now, you know."

Nettie nodded. Many of those evenings they two had spent in that very room, telling each other of their love. "You know, Nettie," said Mary, "of course Cal and I have rubbed along together in a sort of way. But somehow I've never really felt that I owned him. Nettie, I wish we wives knew the recipe for keeping a man's love."

Nettie forced herself to smile again. "That's an old wish," she said.

"I suppose so," said Mary wistfully. "But at any rate even if Cal doesn't love me much, we've got along together, and I can always trust Cal. I'm never afraid of his running after other women."

"That's comforting," said Nettie. "And then—Oh, my dear, I wanted you to be the first to know my secret. You know we've been married so many years, but at last—She whispered it in Nettie's ear. And Nettie listening, felt her heart turning to stone.

"We've both of us always wanted a child so much, and now at last—why, it seems too good to be true," said Mary. "And it will make us both so happy. It will bind us together."

"Yes," said Nettie mechanically. "Well, I wanted you to be the first to know," said Mary, rising. "Good-by, dear." She kissed her fondly.

Nettie watched her from the front door until she was lost to view in the darkness. Did Mary guess she wondered? But that she would never know. Those are the little things that women cannot divine about each other. Suddenly she ran upstairs. With a sob she began tumbling the things out of the suitcase. She wouldn't need them now.

No Age Limit in This Concern

By JOHN PALMER

"Old" Johnson, he was called, and the appellation fitted him tolerably well. Johnson was seventy, and had been 45 years with Mace & Co.

Changes take place inevitably in every organization. Mace & Co. were being reconstructed. Brown, the energetic new president, called Harry Thompson into his office. Thompson was sixty, and had worked up from office boy to general manager. "Who's that old fellow at the bookkeeping end?" he asked.

"That's old Johnson."

"Efficient?"

"Oh, fairly so for an old-timer. Rather got into a rut with the years."

"Fire him!" snapped Brown. "We want new blood in this organization."

Thompson called the old man up to his desk. "Well, Johnson," he said. "I suppose you've managed to put by a little money in all these years?"

Old Johnson turned white as a ghost. He had always dreaded what he knew was coming. "No, sir," he stammered. "There was a time when I had a little savings, but the cost of living—"

"Yes, yes, of course," interrupted Thompson brusquely. "It's unfortunate, Johnson, but I'm under orders to discharge you. We've got to have new blood in this firm. You ought to have managed to put something by. I'm sorry, but—"

"My God, Thompson, what will my wife do?"

"I don't know, Johnson. I don't want to know, either. That's up to you!"

He watched the broken old man withdraw, shaking his head and hunching his shoulders. "Poor devil," he muttered. "We've got to have new blood, though."

Old Johnson disappeared from the office. Other changes occurred. About a month later Harry Brown sent for Thompson.

"Mr. Thompson," he began suavely, "I suppose you've managed to lay by a comfortable sum these years you've been here?"

"Why a little, not much," answered Thompson. He was interested in the question. Probably Harry Brown was going to invite him to invest in the company.

"I'm glad to hear that, because—well, Mr. Thompson, we're getting new blood into the firm, you know, and—how are you, Thompson?"

Thompson was struck cold. "You mean you won't need my services?" he stammered. "Why—why—I've been here since I was a boy! My wife will go crazy!"

"I hope not," Thompson said. "That's up to your wife and you. I must ask for your resignation in a month's time. Or, in consideration of your valuable services to the firm over so many years, a month's salary will be at your disposition."

Thompson withdrew, shaking his head. He was absolutely knocked out. He had a little money—if he had been a younger man he would have got some of the old hands together and started a manufacturing business of his own. But at his age—he couldn't take the risk. It was the most cold-blooded thing he had ever heard of.

He put on his hat and left the office. He felt that he could never go back. Forty years' service and summarily turned down like this! He collided with an elderly man who was walking abstractedly in the opposite direction. He straightened himself with a frown. Old Johnson!

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Mr. Thompson," whined the old fellow. "I was coming down to see you, to ask if you couldn't consider giving me something—any sort of a position, sir. I'm at the end of my resources, and my wife's nearly out of her mind."

Thompson clapped the old man on the shoulder. "They've fired me, too, Johnson," he said with a hysterical laugh. "I guess you and I are in the same boat together."

"Fired you, sir?" gasped old Johnson, shocked by the announcement. "Why—Thompson had been a fixture in the office ever since he remembered him as a curly-headed clerk."

"That's the ticket, Johnson. But I've decided to start a little factory of my own. I know the process, and I can get one or two of the old-timers to help me. And you know the books and the costing. How about coming in with me, Johnson? We'll show them that old blood's better than new. And there won't be any age limit in our concern."

HIT SOCIETY ANTICS
London, Oct. 8.—This nocturnal "clew-hasing" stunts of a coterie of the smart younger set are being assailed by the London newspapers.

An organization has been formed known as "The Society of Bright Young People." Various objects are hidden in different parts of the city, with only a few clues to their whereabouts, and the members of the society hunt for them in automobiles.

LONG WORK FUTURE
Paris, Oct. 8.—After 46 years consecrated to the task of revising the French dictionary, the "Forty Immortals" of the French Academy have found that during this time the language has been so modified that they must begin all over again with their work in revision. The first volume of the "revision of the revision" will be published within the next year.

REVIVE COOKING ART
Chicago, Oct. 8.—The fine art of cooking—lost for a generation—is being rescued by the American schools, according to Miss Anna E. Phelan, high secretary of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters. "Our grandmothers taught their daughters to cook," she says. "But now it's up to the schools. The present-day mothers themselves can't cook."

BUCK HARRIS OUT AT FIRST—Here ended the play on Buck Harris his first time at bat. With one down, he hit to Jackson, Giant shortstop, who juggled the ball but recovered in time to catch Harris on a close play at first base. A fraction of a second after this picture was snapped Harris collided with Terry, the New York first baseman. Terry's knee was injured, but after a brief delay he was able to resume play—and later to hit a homerun.

County Agent

Work Continued

Valley City, Oct. 8.—Due to the fact that an insufficient number of petition signers were obtained, the proposition of continuing county agricultural extension work will not be voted on this fall, according to a decision by the county commission.

The petitions filed bore 649 signatures, and the legal requirements of 15 per cent of the taxpayers would be 728, as the list of taxpayers totaled 4,520.

As a result of the commissioners' action county extension work will be continued for at least two years before a vote can be called for by petition.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Robert Foran, newspaper correspondent, accompanies the Theodore Roosevelt expedition into Africa in 1909. They arrive at Mombasa, the "gateway to British East Africa," and then make the long railroad journey to their first camp in the game-crowded Kapiti Plains.

After a wonderfully successful shooting trip in the Sotik country, the expedition camps for more hunting at a farm called Saigai-Sai. After several other trips they invade the Guaso Nyero elephant country and meet with some more good sport. The Roosevelt expedition is given a royal reception at Njoro and Entebbe. Now the expedition arrives at Nimule on the long journey through Uganda, the Congo and Sudan to Egypt. Foran learns that Roosevelt's arrival at Gondokoro will be postponed because of a newly planned elephant hunt.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX

Roosevelt at Gondokoro

The Roosevelt expedition, headed by Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit, arrived at Gondokoro on the early morning of Feb. 17.

All the residents of this little outpost on the borders of Uganda and the Sudan had assembled on the outskirts of the station at the point where the Roosevelt would enter the village. The first to arrive was Kermit, and he was quickly followed by Mearns. They joined us to wait for the arrival of Colonel Roosevelt and the big safari.

Suddenly, from the distance, came the music of a bugle and drum band, playing alternately, British and Belgian bugle marches. And then the long string of porters came round a bend in the road. At their head marched a porter, carrying the large American flag that had accompanied the expedition for the past 11 months. Immediately behind them walked Colonel Roosevelt and Loring.

Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit, together with their small safari, returned to Gondokoro on the afternoon of Feb. 26.

CHAPTER XXX

Into the Sudan From Gondokoro

Shortly after Colonel Roosevelt's arrival in Gondokoro from Rejaf, he was called upon to say goodbye to his large following of native servants and porters.

They left the same day for Kampala and Nairobi to return to their homes. As they started forth from Gondokoro, they cheered themselves hoarse and sang songs in praise of the Bwana Mkuuwa, Kingi ya Ameriki, the big chief, the king of America.

That night Colonel Roosevelt asked Haddon and myself to dine on board the "Dal." Kermit had got the ship's cook to remove his beard and cut his hair, and he appeared at dinner looking unusually spruce and smart. Colonel Roosevelt was in fine form, and told us about his hunt after the giant elephant. He spoke most warmly of Kermit, and of his excellent management of the "safari" and his wonderful powers of endurance in tracking.

"Kermit runs in the mid-day heat," he asserted, proudly, "after his quarry when trailing them down, and never seems to tire. Once he is on the track of a beast he wants, he will not let it alone until he has killed it."

Consider what the two Roosevelts had achieved. Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit had shot close on 500 large mammals between them, including 1 giant elephant, 2 lions, 11 white rhinos, 1 sitatunga, 17 lions, 11 elephants, 10 buffalo, 11 ordinary rhinos, 6 hippos, 9 giraffes, 3 sable antelopes, 3 leopards, 7 cheetahs and a great number of antelope and gazelle, and other animals too numerous to count.

Kermit, as I think I have already stated, was a boy in a thousand. He took to the life of a hunter as if he had been born one. He was a most likeable companion, and ever ready for a playful joke or some daring feat. Few boys, receiving such attention and such favoring, could have come through the ordeal unscathed; but Kermit did so.

He was just the same happy-go-lucky Kermit at the end of the long expedition as the one who had gone to Africa a year previously, but he had filled out and had more purpose in life. I cannot bestow higher praise on him than to say he was always just as modest and silent about his own great achievements in the field as he was expert in hunting; and that in saying a very great deal.

On Feb. 28, the "Dal" started off down stream for the Sudan, it having been arranged that the Roosevelt should do a little shooting in the Sudan and then reach Khartoum on March 15. At Khartoum, Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel Roosevelt (Mrs. Derby) were to meet them.

The entire population of Gondokoro, or rather those who were not too ill, crowded on the banks of the Nile to wish him bon voyage. As the "Dal" drew away into midstream and slowly turned his bow toward the country of the Sudan, a guard-of-honor of the Uganda police presented arms and the bugler sounded the royal salute.

THE END.

Among them may be noted, the cyclist in Loraine, Ohio, Balaton, Minnesota, Bloomer, Wisconsin and Dickinson, North Dakota.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX

Roosevelt at Gondokoro
The Roosevelt expedition, headed by Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit, arrived at Gondokoro on the early morning of Feb. 17.

All the residents of this little outpost on the borders of Uganda and the Sudan had assembled on the outskirts of the station at the point where the Roosevelt would enter the village. The first to arrive was Kermit, and he was quickly followed by Mearns. They joined us to wait for the arrival of Colonel Roosevelt and the big safari.

Suddenly, from the distance, came the music of a bugle and drum band, playing alternately British and Belgian bugle marches. And then the long string of porters came round a bend in the road. At their head marched a porter, carrying the large American flag that had accompanied the expedition for the past 11 months. Immediately behind them walked Colonel Roosevelt and Loring.

Everybody cheered as they recognized him.

They had marched in from Chief Kiriba's village, a distance of 16 miles, since 3 o'clock in the morning. Immediately behind Colonel Roosevelt came Chief Kiriba, who was dressed in a khaki suit, the sun helmet and sun glasses that I had given him, and blue puttees. Every now and again he would turn round and urge his band to play more vigorously and louder in honor of the "Kingi ya Ameriki."

It appeared that Chief Kiriba had insisted on playing the colonel into Gondokoro, for the whole distance of 16 miles, despite the protests of Colonel Roosevelt who wished to shoot as he traveled into Gondokoro. The band, however, rendered any game shooting entirely out of the question.

Behind the colonel trailed along the mules, tent boys, cooks, sappers, gun bearers, Saimi the headman and his porters with their loads, and all the other impediments of an African safari. That endless stream into Gondokoro continued for a space of three hours. Cunningham and Heller were the very last to arrive.

I took Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit down to the "Dal," where Captain Middleton was introduced to them and told how he had been sent up to bring them down to Khartoum by the Sudan government.

Above the "Dal" fluttered the Stars and Stripes; while in the stern float of the Sudan flag, and in the bow the Egyptian Khedival flag. Truly was this an international yacht!

After lunch was over, Kermit and Loring distinguished themselves by a most heroic attempt to rescue a drowning porter. It seemed that, while playing on the barge alongside of the "Dal," one of the porters had pushed another into the Nile. Unfortunately this man could not swim, and he had already sunk twice before Kermit and Loring saw what had happened.

There was a large crowd of natives on the bank, but they made no attempt to rescue the man. Before Kermit could get to the side of the "Dal" and dive in, the man had gone down a third time. Kermit dived repeatedly into the swift-flowing river in the hope of finding the man's body and saving him; but the current travels here at the rate of four miles an hour and all his gallant attempt to save the man proved unavailing. Loring gave Kermit yeoman assistance, and both of them were absolutely indifferent to the danger of the current and the numerous crocodiles.

The day after Colonel Roosevelt had taken up his quarters on the Dal, he received two official callers. Captain Ranquet, the Belgian commandant of Lado, and Major Owen, the governor of the Mongalla province of the Sudan, both came in their own steamers to offer a welcome to the expedition on behalf of their respective governments.

That night Colonel Roosevelt celebrated the end of the expedition, for this was virtually the conclusion of it. Yet at the dinner table, he announced that while Cunningham was busy with the packing of the trophies, Kermit and himself were going to go back to Rejaf in the Lado Enclave and try to get a group of giant eland.

This was to be the first and last hunt on a large scale that father and son would undertake together without the assistance of an old-timer to handle their porters for them. Kermit had learned quite a lot of Kisuahili and was going to act as guide, hunter, photographer, manager, and generally undertake all of Cunningham's and Heller's duties.

Next morning all the loads were taken down to the "Dal," and after lunch the steamer headed up stream for Rejaf.

The following day, Cunningham returned on the Dal, having seen that Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit had got away safely from Rejaf. He was now free to devote himself to the packing of the trophies and to the arrangements for the paying off of the porters and their return to Kampala. The naturalists had been taking a well-earned rest, and had not as yet got seriously to work on their specimens.

It took Cunningham six whole days, working many hours a day and with my help, to arrange satisfactorily for the breaking up of that small army of porters. There were 400 porters, the mules, the personal servants, cooks, skinners and so on to pay off and feed for their long journey back to Kampala and even Nairobi. In the intervals of this work, Cunningham and I were selling off all the stores and tents that were no longer required.

Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit, together with their small safari, returned to Gondokoro on the afternoon of Feb. 26.

Shortly after Colonel Roosevelt's arrival in Gondokoro from Rejaf, he was called upon to say goodbye to his large following of native servants

"SUPER POWER" IN NO. DAKOTA HELD CERTAIN

Governor Sees This State Becoming Important Factor In the Future

MEANS DEVELOPMENT

North Dakota Now Land of Opportunity, He Declares Before Women

Minot, N. D., Oct. 8.—Belief that North Dakota is destined to take an important place in the development of "super power" projects in the country was expressed by Governor R. A. Nesbit, in addressing a joint meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs and the State Library Association here this afternoon.

"Not only should we know and tell the story of the wonderful productivity of our state and how immeasurably richer in productive soil we are in proportion to population than any other country on the face of the globe, but we should also learn the story of the coals and clays of our state," the Governor said, speaking on the subject of "Building and Boosting North Dakota."

"The question of heat and power is becoming increasingly important in every part of the world," he continued, "and the time is not far distant when in every part of the United States they will be creating and maintaining giant power projects where, utilizing both the waterfall and the mine, they will weave a network of transmission lines that will make these sources of power, heat, and light available to practically every community. When this marvel is wrought, when that which now is largely the dream of the electrician becomes a reality, the promoter, local engineer and the promoter local engineer, will be able to harness the power of the coal fields and transmission lines, the lignite coal mines of North Dakota will play a most important part. It takes no prophet to predict that before long we will have such power projects at the entrance of many a mine in our state, using the power created from the coal waste, not only to mine, but to manufacture the by-products and to furnish power for the lighting of the nearby cities, villages, and farms, for the activities of the home and farmstead, and also for milling, agricultural products, thus concentrating and rendering more convenient for shipment to the great consuming centers of our country."

Will Share In It

"Surely, of this power a share will also be employed to manufacture the almost inexhaustible supplies of clays of a very high quality to be found in the hills near the coal mines in the southwestern part of the state, and that before another decade or two has gone by, North Dakota will supply the brick, the tile, the earthenware, and the chinaware for all of the north central region of the United States."

Much of the Governor's address was devoted to agriculture and the prospects for immigration to North Dakota. He urged that the state is the land of opportunity.

"North Dakota is a land of opportunity and it is yours," said the Governor. "You have wrought nobly in the acknowledged strength and excellence of its homes, schools, and churches, in the democracy of its social life and in keeping the avenues of opportunity open to all who come within its hospitable borders. Continue, ye builders of the commonwealth, to make it worthy of its highest tribute. Join with others, like-minded in making it truly a 'Greater North Dakota' and publish to all the world that here is the land of opportunity where prosperity may be achieved and happiness and contentment permanently abide."

Town May Have To Bond To Pay Damage Cost

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 8.—In order to pay an $8,500 judgment granted Mrs. Gunda Goar, 301 North Sixth street, Grand Forks and pay a portion of the cost of litigation, the village of Stephen, Minn. may have to bond itself to the extent of $9,000. Officers of the village have called a special election for October 22 to vote on the proposition. In fighting the case, the village, losing the case in the lower courts, carried it to the supreme court, incurring a cost including the judgment of approximately $11,000. All but $9,000 of this has been paid.

The judgment grew out of injuries sustained by Mrs. Goar on August 10, 1922, when she was burned by a high voltage of electricity while at work in her home in Stephen.

COTTON CROP DECLINE SHARP

Washington, Oct. 8.—The cotton crop declined to the extent of 97,000 bales in the two weeks from September 18 to October 1, the Department of Agriculture indicated today in its forecast of a total production of 12,499,000, equivalent 500 pound bales, based on the condition of the crop October 1. Last year 10,139,671 bales were grown.

Bob's Electors Off Ballot

New Orleans, Oct. 8.—Follette electors will not go on the ballot in Louisiana, Federal District Judge Rufus Foster today having decided he was without jurisdiction to act on an application for an injunction to restrain Secretary of State Bailey from printing the ballots without the name of the independent electors.

BUT HE DID IT ONCE TOO OFTEN!

A thousand feet in the air! But watch him out there standing on his head! Look at him scamper about the plane! He laughs at death as he goes about his business entertaining the folk 1000 feet high! Yet Homer Miller of Canton, O., a stunt flier, laughed just about once too often. A minute after this picture was taken, while he was preparing to catch a rope dangling from a plane above, one of his lungs was punctured by the wing of his own ship. It happened in Cleveland. He's in a hospital there now. Doctors say he will recover.

"GOODBY AND GOOD LUCK"

President Coolidge regrets losing his assistant secretary of navy. But at the same time he wishes Colonel Theodore Roosevelt the best of luck as he bids him goodbye. If Teddy should defeat Al Smith in the New York gubernatorial elections, the Empire State is safe for "Cal," the politicians figure. And the president seems to feel the same way about it, judging from his smile.

REMOVAL OF NEGRO ASKED

Validity of 14th Amendment Is Attacked

New Orleans, La., Oct. 8.—Suit was filed in federal district court here to remove Walter L. Cohen, negro comptroller of customs of New Orleans, from that office, on the grounds that he is of African blood and descent and therefore not a citizen of the United States. The petition in the suit, filed by H. Edwin Bolte, who said he was an attorney of Washington, D. C., attacks the validity of the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution, alleging that it was never legally adopted nor having been proposed by two thirds of each house of congress nor ratified by two thirds of the states. Cohen stated he did not take the matter seriously but that it would be referred to United States Attorney Burns.

FIRE DESTROYS FAIR BUILDING

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 8.—Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the Liberal Arts building at the North Dakota state fairgrounds here Sunday night. The loss is estimated at $22,000 with $12,500 insurance. The blaze was not discovered until it broke out through the roof of the wooden structure, and when the Grand Forks fire department reached the scene a few minutes later the entire building was a mass of flames and beginning to collapse. It is believed that the blaze may have been caused by tramps sleeping in the building. The building was erected in 1909.

Admits Killing

Ashbury Wessinger, 14, who has admitted the brutal death of his aunt, Mrs. Voight Wessinger, near Columbia, S. C. The slaying followed a quarrel over a pocket knife and the lad, brooding over fancied wrongs, killed her with an ax as she sat milking a cow in the back yard. Later he injured three of the aunt's children with an ax handle.

GETS DIVORCE TO GIVE WIFE HER FREEDOM

Professor Acts in True, Moving Picture Style in Action in Chicago Court

SHE CHOOSES SHEIK

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—To enable his wife to marry another man, for whom she confessed a "perfect passionate love," and with whom she was said in evidence to have been living in Evanston, Ill., for more than a year, Dr. Alfred Lawrence Hall Quest, director of the University of Pittsburgh extension work and noted lecturer, has obtained a divorce.

Every precaution was taken to guard the name of the man, the cultured love letters telling of her infatuation for him having been copied into the record with his name carefully deleted. In her letter the wife pleaded for her freedom so that "social laws might sanction" her life with the other man for whom she said she was ready "to give up everything else in the world."

Dr. Hall-Quest, 44 years old, was graduated at Princeton. He taught at the University of Illinois and the University of Cincinnati and wrote a number of scientific works.

He married Miss Shirley Ivy Knox, in 1908. In 1923, he said in evidence, while he was at Columbia University, she left his home in Cincinnati and came to Chicago with the other man.

A few days after the elopement she wrote to Dr. Hall-Quest, a letter, which was introduced as evidence in which she said:

"I wanted to show you, if possible, that my going away with him was necessary, not because it meant a consummation of the love that is between us, but because it offered as we saw it, the only way for an upbuilding made necessary by years of tearing down process."

"That public scandal should be avoided for your sake, I can quite realize, but — and I can and must take all the blame that attaches to our decision to live together and therefore no secrecy was even contemplated when we left."

Other letters portrayed her hope that freedom would bring ease of mind and reasserting her love for the other man. The last of the letters told how hopeless would be the husband's plea for an interview in the hope of ending the situation.

Take Body To Garrison Today

The body of Mrs. Frank McGray, who died in a local hospital Monday night, was taken to Garrison today, where funeral services will be held tomorrow. Many relatives of Mrs. McGray arrived here, and accompanied the body.

Auto license fees paid during the first six months of 1924 amounted to $195,821,622.

COUNTY CLUBS ARE ORGANIZED

Home Makers Clubs Started at Three Places

Organization of Home Makers club, by the home demonstration division of the agricultural extension department of the University of Minnesota has been under way in Burleigh county, under the leadership of Mrs. Dorothy Louden of the Agricultural College, assisted by Mrs. T. Ellison of Sterling.

A club was organized at Sterling, and the basis laid for organization of clubs at Moffit and at Canfield consolidated school, near Regan. Mrs. Louden conducted cheese-making demonstrations at these places. The home makers' clubs embrace all women's activities, including preparation of foods, making of clothing, and similar activities.

There now are about 200 clubs in the state, according to Mrs. Louden. The agricultural extension department will continue to cooperate with clubs, although further organization work probably will not be

Individual Service—Nation-Wide Facilities

TELEPHONE service is essentially an individual service. Each subscriber must be dealt with as an individual. His telephone instrument is a piece of individual, personal equipment. But to coordinate this instrument with a nation-wide system requires supplementary facilities in wholesale quantities.

In itself, this instrument represents only a relatively small investment. Its proportionate share, however, in the total investment in wire, poles, switchboards, buildings and other plant required to make Bell System service universal in scope is an hundred times its own value.

This investment per instrument is steadily increasing as more and more equipment, constantly growing more complex, is put into service at the present high prices of labor and materials.

Centralized manufacture and years of continuous research have enabled the Bell System in some measure to meet this rising tide of plant investment. The result is that its service remains unrivalled not only in efficiency and in extent but in economy from the standpoint of cost to the subscriber.

Hewing to the Line

WITH the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) industry begins with service and ends with profits. Service and profits are fundamentally two aspects of the same thing. The one contains the other.

A fair profit to the stockholders, a fair price to the consumers, a just industrial program for the workers, a clean attitude toward competitors and service for everybody, all the time, are merely different ways of saying: here is an industrial corporation which is successful.

Distinguished service medals are not awarded bankrupts. If an organization cannot make a profit, it cannot remain in business. If industry is made to suffer the wrongs of unnecessary investigations, fixed profits, fixed wages or any other fixed workings of business, the business will eventually be forced into bankruptcy, and the result will be a summary ending of its service to society.

Business is a living, growing, changing organism. It cannot be "fixed." You cannot animate by law. You can only restrain. And unwise restraint tends to lessen and limit production.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is carrying on with scientific efficiency. Its service to society, as a whole, is an inseparable part of its successful existence.

The Lamar, Missouri, Democrat says: "Every great and successful business does more to make happy homes, raise living standards, and place comforts and even luxuries at the doors of myriads, than all of the spouting declaimers that ever dwelt in the iridescent realms of fancy."

"Good wages could never be paid without creative genius to organize and carry on a successful business. And the secret of every big business success is to be able to sell things cheaper instead of higher."

"Our greatest benefactors are seldom recognized for what they are. If you'd tell the average man, for example, that the Standard Oil Company had done more for the human race than all of the rip-snorting sorts of discontent that ever tortured the air with their raucous clamor, he'd probably say you were joking."

The success of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is enduring only because its existence is profitable and serviceable to all with whom it comes in contact.
